Note Brokering & Investing: How To Buy Mortgage Notes

November 16, 2020

November 16, 2020 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Note Brokering & Investing, specialists in brokering and investing in promissory notes, are reaching out to the wider community to explain how to buy mortgage notes. The company buys and sells real estate and business notes of all shapes and sizes, and provides training to help people learn the benefits of note brokering and investing in promissory notes.

In a blog post on their website, the company explains that note investors buy notes to add to their portfolio of investments and build their cash flow income stream while note brokers buy, sell or broker notes to other note buyers for a spread or commission. In both cases, there are a number of different ways in which note investors and note brokers can buy and sell notes. The company also says that most note investors broker notes as well as keep notes for themselves, as no investor has unlimited funds.

According to Note Brokering & Investing, note buyers have different buying requirements. Some only buy single family home notes or mobile home notes, while others only buy in a certain state. In the blog post, the company writes, "If you are going to buy notes for yourself, you need to decide what your buying requirements are. Small notes or note partials are ideal for your IRA (Individual Retirement Account). Large value notes might be too big for you, and would be better brokered to a large note investor or even a bank.?

As the company explains, there are different types of notes that can be bought. These include real estate notes, commercial notes, private promissory notes, seller financed notes, non performing notes, business notes and more. The most common type that note investors buy are real estate mortgage notes, because they are either private mortgage seller financed notes or non performing notes ? mortgage loans in which the borrower is not paying, as outlined according to the terms of the note ? that banks sell.

According to Note Brokering & Investing, if an investor is looking at buying non performing notes, they should then talk with banks and hedge funds that have pools of non performing notes. Investing in such notes is both high reward and high risk, which means that they should seek expert advice before investing their hard earned cash in these types of notes.

The blog post also explains how to find real estate notes for sale. It reads, ?For many years, the only way to really find notes to buy was to get a list of note holders and send them a direct mail letter and offer to buy their note. Other low cost methods to find note sellers include ads in local newspapers, pennysavers, thrifty nickel and networking with realtors who may be in contact with people wanting to sell their notes.? However, today, there are ways in which notes can be bought online.

Free methods to buy notes online include scouring Craigslist and other similar sites to find sellers of promissory notes, networking with realtors and mortgage brokers who deal with owner financed properties, contactic note servicing companies and so on. While these methods are all effective, according to Note Brokering & Investing, the most powerful method to find promissory notes online is Search Engine Optimization (SEO).

In the blog post, the company writes, ?There are several ways to leverage SEO/Search Engine Optimization for finding a private mortgage loan or promissory note. There is Local SEO, which involves optimizing your website and Google My Business (GMB) Profile for local searches related to note sellers. Youtube is another online asset that can be utilised for finding notes ? video is a very important SEO asset and should be considered in any online effort to generate leads for notes and mortgages.?
