

EPS Landscaping & Tree Service Discusses Importance Of Landscape Lighting In Deerfield Beach

November 19, 2020

Pembroke Pines, Florida - November 19, 2020 -
Pembroke Pines, Florida-based EPS Landscaping & Tree Service is reaching out to the community with a new blog post where they explain how their community may make the most out of Deerfield Beach landscaping and lighting.

Greg O'Connell, a representative of EPS Landscaping & Tree Service, says, "Landscaping is one of the most popular services among the Deerfield Beach community, with a significant number of its local residents putting serious effort into showing a little of their personality and skills through their property. While most people put a lot of thought into how they convey these traits, we have noticed that one aspect that often goes overlooked is proper lighting. Naturally, this prevents them from making the most out of their new space, both in terms of aesthetics and actually getting to enjoy their new landscape."

According to O'Connell, the way a landscape's lighting is done has a significant impact on the final look of the yard. Features such as path lights, inground lights or overhead floodlights go a long way in terms of accomplishing this, even accentuating other aspects of the yard. There may be certain elements of the landscape that need some illumination at night. These could include the pathway that leads to the exterior fireplace or the water fountain that brings tranquility to the home. While these features are hard to miss during the day, reduced visibility at night can obscure them completely or take away from the majesty of the place.

O'Connell says, "By placing outdoor lighting throughout your landscape, you can highlight many of the features you already have. Guide people to your front door over paths and walkways with lighting. Just as the stars highlight the beautiful vastness of the sky above, landscape lighting can give you the final push to turn your space from great to fantastic."

These kinds of lighting serve another function besides pure aesthetic value, as they can also help to extend the living space by providing an exterior area that can be used at all hours. O'Connell states, "Crafting a well-lit outdoor living area creates a multi-dimensional home that can be enjoyed day and night. By providing this kind of extension, you create the space you might need to enjoy private conversations with friends, family and colleagues. You can also use this space to break the monotony of hanging out indoors. It is a great way to share wonderful moments with your family when the weather is just right."

Having a well-lit yard at night can also benefit the safety and security of the property. Exterior lighting at night can help remove or uncover safety hazards that lead to accidents in the dark, such as tripping, forgotten objects and even wild animals that could be lurking nearby. This improved safety is especially important during the winter months when the days get dark quicker and icy patches are more prevalent.

These are only a few of the benefits that landscape lighting can bring to a property, as EPS Landscaping & Tree Service states that there is much to this subject than what may first meet the eye. They note that this is one of several landscaping services that they offer, helping their clients incorporate lighting into their yard by providing advice, help and highly-skilled professionals to bring any project to fruition.

O'Connell says, "We can help you with several aspects of any project, from offering guidance on how best to handle it, building around your budget and then executing on whatever you wind up settling for. We will be ready to tackle any unforeseen challenges that may come up along the way. We are professionals with a great deal of experience in the Deerfield Beach area, and we are here to show you the excellence that our competitors can only aspire to.?
