

Miami Movers Announces New Office Location

September 14, 2015

September 14, 2015 -
City Movers of Miami, Florida, has recently announced a new office location. The company has opened their new office in Miami as a means of better serving local and interstate moves for customers. The company's original location is in Los Angeles, California.

Leo Soroka, spokesperson for Miami City Movers, released a statement about the new location, stating, "With a local office, we can help people from the Miami area westward. We're excited about this new chapter in our business life, and look forward to assisting Florida residents with their moving needs."

City Movers offers services to consumers or businesses who are moving, either across town or across the nation. This newest location is located in the heart of Miami, and can help movers in the Miami area, or those anywhere in or near Florida with their moving needs. The company prides itself on offering all of the moving essentials provided by large moving companies, but with a small moving company feel.

The company states that a Miami office gives them a better field for assisting movers that are located further out than their California office could easily reach. Although they do offer state to state moving, they plan to branch out continually, giving them the ability to help all consumers throughout the nation at some point.

"We're definitely not stopping," states Soroka. "People need a reliable moving company, and that's what we are. Our new Miami location allows us to specialize in coast to coast moving, helping anyone in the nation who needs to get moved."

GetMovedToday.com currently assists consumers across the nation with interstate and local moves, tapping into the billion dollar per year moving industry.

The company provides various moving services from the actual transport to packing, and a number of moving supplies. In addition, they provide storage options, and can help consumers to locate storage in their new location, locally and long distance.

Consumers planning a move can contact the company at http://www.getmovedtoday.com to learn more about the services that they provide. Those looking for a moving company that offers coast to coast services, can also contact the company at http://www.getmovedtoday.com.
