Verndale, Minnesota-based PureOne Services is pleased to inform their community that they offer biohazard and trauma cleanup services. Their clients may also engage the company's assistance in unattended death cleanup, crime scene cleanup, blood cleanup and suicide cleanup services. The company has established itself as a reliable building restoration and damage cleanup provider.

Corey Moyer, owner of PureOne Services, says, "As unfortunate as it is, it is a sad fact of life that tragic events sometimes occur in homes or commercial buildings. These events can be devastating in several ways. They can cause emotional distress as well as long-term psychological after-effects on individuals involved. One of the key components to dealing with these situations is making sure that any and all physical evidence of these situations are properly removed and cleaned up. These remains often contain biohazardous materials that must be professionally remediated, and that's where the PureOne team comes in."

While PureOne Services is mainly known as a building restoration and damage cleanup provider, they also provide a comprehensive line of bio hazard cleanup services. As the company explains on their website, biohazards are defined by the US Centers for Disease Control (CDC) as infectious agents or hazardous biological materials that present a risk or potential risk to the health of humans, animals or the environment.

When blood, bodily fluids or fecal matter are involved, there is always the possibility of exposure to dangerous pathogens.

Moyer says, "Due to the hazardous nature of scenes of trauma, it's important that you call a professional restoration expert to clean up these trauma scenes. Without the proper training, processes and protective gear, there is a lot of potential for health hazards. That is not to say the amount of emotional trauma one can go through if they are not ready to face such situations."

The four key biohazard cleanup services offered by the company are crime scene cleanup, suicide cleanup, blood cleanup and unattended death cleanup. In all cases, PureOne Services has a dedicated team of trained professionals with top of the line equipment that ensures that they can carry out the required cleaning effectively, prioritizing health and safety as well as making the area fit for human presence again. They guarantee a 24-hour emergency response, no-obligation estimates, industry standard methods and equipment and compassionate customer service. The biohazard cleanup teams at PureOne Services are experienced in restoring properties, homes and businesses after a traumatic event.

The services offered by PureOne Services are clearly appreciated by the community, as is made evident by the reviews the company has earned. On the Google platform, the Minneapolis branch of the company has a rating of 4.9 out of 5 Stars. In a recent review, Laura Paukert writes, "This team is 100% on top of their game. They should be the first call if any services are needed. They were clear, concise and did exactly what was promised. They are honest and hard working. I could not have had a better professional experience. Thank you."

Meanwhile, Caitlin Kassebaum writes in her review for the St. Louis branch of the company, "My house had a small mold patch in the basement. Jerry came out to assess the mold, gave a rundown of how it would be tackled and sent us a description of the cost and all that would happen with the project. My husband and I decided to move forward with PureOne to tackle the job! I'm glad we did! They found out why the mold had grown (due to a leak in our bathtub) and then found a plumber to fix the leak. They then resealed the drywall that had to be cut out to remove the mold. The project was completed promptly, and I feel this company really cared about our needs. They even helped move the basement furniture back where it needed to go when the project was complete. This was a great experience for something that isn't so great to have to have done in a home! Definitely recommend them - job well done, PureOne!"
