

Crane Network, An Online Crane Marketplace, Is Listing Used Cranes For Sale And Rent

December 10, 2020

December 10, 2020 -
Crane Network, an online equipment marketplace that specializes in cranes, is offering used cranes for sale and rent. Along with cranes, the website also lists construction equipment and parts or attachments.

The website includes a search engine that enables users to search for cranes, equipment, or parts. There is a filter for the same. There is another filter to narrow down the search result by the manufacturer. This can be further narrowed down by the model name and number. Businesses can be listed on the website by purchasing a business package that allows uploading information such as company address, phone number, company website, short description, long description, and company logo. Once a business has been listed it allows them to send and receive messages to potential sales leads. The website also allows users to post a ?Want To Buy? ad. ?Want To Buy? ads roll off after 2 months.

The website also includes listings of sold cranes. There are also subcategories that link to rentcranesnow.com and freecranespecs.com. The website allows businesses to list equipment and parts on the website for fixed rates in different packages. The packages include features such as email blasts, featured listings, social media promotions, and optimized search listings. There are even auction packages to be availed of. It also allows businesses to magnify their online exposure by purchasing rotating header banners, equipment listings banners, static sidebar banners, and SEO banners.

Its most popular crane categories include truck-mounted telescopic boom cranes, carry deck industrial cranes, tower cranes, telehandler forklifts, and crawler telescopic boom cranes. Its most popular construction equipment categories include wood chippers, bucket trucks, tractors, loader backhoes, and forklifts. Its most popular parts and equipment categories include hoisting, outrigger mats pads, and cribbing, filters (oil, air, hydraulic), engines & transmissions, and shafting.

The website allows businesses to get quotes on financing, insurance, and transportation. Young fledgling startups or established corporations can both apply for financing. A wide range of equipment can be financed such as automotive, industrial, long & short-haul trucks, construction, manufacturing, and much more. The website has a form where businesses can submit the details of their current inventory to get insurance quotes from the Crane Network?s insurance specialists. The website also helps businesses source safe, reliable transportation for a heavy haul. Businesses can fill out a form and they will be put in touch with a logistics affiliate to discuss the next steps.

Ron Selby Jr, a spokesperson for the company says ?For over 20 years, Crane Network has been connecting buyers and sellers of cranes, heavy equipment, parts, and attachments.
