December 07, 2020 -

TruShine Services, an Atlanta based commercial cleaning service, would like to connect with businesses and restaurateurs in the Atlanta area looking for a reliable and professional kitchen cleaning service. The company uses a wide range of cleaning products and techniques to keep the client's kitchen spaces sanitary, and hazard-free.

Now more than ever during this COVID-19 pandemic, keeping one's restaurant sanitized is vital to keeping one's staff and patrons healthy and the doors open, which is why Atlanta's top restaurateurs trust TruShine to disinfect and clean their kitchens.

TruShine understands that finding a reliable, professional commercial kitchen cleaning service in Atlanta can be difficult. As the owner, Carlos Tavaréz, says, "We understand the fast pace environment of the restaurant industry and the needs of our customers. There is no worse feeling than walking into your kitchen for prep and discovering that the cleaning crew didn't do their job. If you're looking for a company and a service that puts their customers first, then look no further than TruShine."

TruShine caters specifically to restaurateurs, meaning that unlike other companies serving multiple industries, TruShine's staff understand what restaurant owners need. Because of this expertise, TruShine customers will find that their hood cleaning service is the best in Atlanta. Carlos and his team are so committed to this fact that their website states, "We'll clean your entire exhaust system: your hood, your fans, filters, and ducts? We'll even change your fan belt if it needs it at no extra charge, as well as grease your motor bearings for your fan & clean your make-up air filters at no extra charges. Hopefully, that should also cool down your kitchen by a good 5 Degrees. Next time ask your current company for certification. We don't cut corners, and we adhere strictly to NFPA Code 96."
