December 09, 2020 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Grace Roofing, a local Winston Salem roofing company is urging homeowners to consider roof maintenance in order to prevent costly roof leak repairs. The company offers services such as commercial roofing, roof replacement, roof repair, and metal roofing. The company's Google My Business page can be accessed at <https://g.page/Gracerroofingllc?we>.

Roofs can leak for a number of reasons such as missing or damaged shingles, clogged gutters, broken flashing, attic condensation, vent boots, holes, brick chimneys, complex roof architecture, skylights, or just plain old roof age. The roof can leak sporadically or during heavy rains if it has any of the aforementioned problems.

The company recommends examining the problem by asking critical questions about the roof. They say that the customer should check if the weather has been extreme lately. They should also check whether the roof has been on their home for over 10 years without having a roof inspection. Next, the customer should check for downed trees, leaves, or debris. Another thing to watch out for is whether their neighbors in the neighborhood have been getting roof replacements. Another thing to check would be whether there was any work on the roof done by the power/satellite company. The customer should also check if there are any shingle tabs or any roofing materials in their yard. Lastly, it is important to check if any natural disasters such as hurricanes, tornados, or tropical storms may have damaged the roof. These steps are crucial for anyone searching for 'Roofing Winston Salem' online so that they can be well aware of the condition of their roof before calling the experts.

The website gives a few steps that can be taken by anyone to get an idea of the general condition of their roof. The first one is to clear the gutters. Gutters can get backed up and can overflow or leak into the transitions of the home. Gutter guard systems allow rainwater to flow freely throughout the infrastructure, without backing up or overflowing. Checking the flashings is important because since it is installed around the openings in the roofing structure, it can be a prime culprit for leaks.

Next, trees scraping along the roof, or limbs rubbing against the shingles can cause major damage. So it is a good idea to keep trees pruned and trimmed. The next step that can be taken is to replace any damaged or worn shingles as soon as possible as it can be the epicenter of a leak. Another thing one can do is to check the attic for any signs of leaks. This includes mold, algae stains on interior plywood, strong smells of bleach, soaked insulation on dry days, and intake vents clogged with paint, spider webs, dust, or insulation. Skylights should also be kept an eye on.

The website recommends scheduling a roof inspection after heavy storms that bring heavy winds and hail or any of the things mentioned above. A good rule is that after having a new roof inspected, getting an inspection on the 5th and 10th year into the roof's life. Then after that, regular inspections, every 2 years will help catch any problems before they end up being an issue. If the customer has nothing specific in mind, just having a general maintenance plan and getting a cursory inspection can set them on the right track for the future.

The website says that a roof inspection can also help customers prepare for a new roof replacement by knowing where their roof is at, timeline-wise. An experienced residential roofing contractor should be able to accurately tell how old the roof is and how much longer it will last. A good roof repair company can also let the customer know what roof repairs they should look to complete to prevent roof leaks and premature failure of the roof. The website recommends acting fast in case of a leak so that it doesn't become a bigger problem than it already is. They recommend anyone searching online for "Roof Repair Winston Salem" to give Grace Roofing a call.
