He continues, ?No one can predict when pest issues will arise, but your family can rest assured that our loyal, efficient team will be there when you need them. Our goal is to resolve pest issues quickly and totally, so homeowners do not experience the recurring expenses, traumatic damages, and loss of time that can accompany pests.?

There are a number of factors that make Apex Environmental Leeds stand out among its competitors. These include: their commitment to best practices, ensuring that they avoid harmful chemical as much as possible to protect the residents of the home and the natural ecosystem in general; their provision of free quotes and services in Leeds; and their offer of deals and low prices, without any hidden fees.

One of the key components of the integrated pest management service they provide in Leeds is mice and rat control and removal. The milder winters that have the UK has experienced during the past years have helped the rat and mice populations in thriving, which is why mice and rat infestation has become quite common. Rodenticide resistance has also become more prevalent, which is why integrated pest management strategies must be used in eradicating mice and rats in the home.

A pest office from Apex Environmental Leeds will visit the home of the customer at the agreed time and examine the home for indications of mice and rats and then provide the necessary treatment, if required. Homeowners may enhance the success rate of the treatment by ensuring all revisit appointments are complied with and by not interfering or changing the locations of bait stations, and making sure that pets and kids are kept away from the bait stations at all times.

Wasp control services may also be provided, especially during summer when the queen wasp emerges from hibernation due to the warmer temperatures. The pest technicians from Apex Environmental Leeds will not necessarily remove the wasp nest but treat it with a professional use dust or liquid insecticide. These wasp nets will not need to be removed because wasps will no longer use them.

Apex Environmental Leeds is headquartered in Leeds and has been offering pest management services for both domestic and commercial customers for almost 35 years. In 2019, the British Pest Managements Awards recognised them as Company of the Year. Whether the customer?s premises is a residential block, industrial warehouse, office building, hospital, school, or commercial unit, they have well trained specialists who can provide the necessary pest management and control services.
