December 16, 2020 -

MoldStar Remediation, Atlanta's most trusted mold remediation company, has launched a new blog post related to "Quarantine DIY" in their series of posts. The post details four common DIY projects homeowners should not attempt to tackle on their own. The post is now live under the blog/resources of the MoldStar Remediation website.

With years of expertise in mold testing, mold removal and clean up, and water restoration, owner Jeremy Shelton and the MoldStar remediation staff have long since been Atlanta's number one choice for remediation and indoor air quality. MoldStar separates themselves from other companies in the Atlanta area in a variety of ways. Most importantly, their dedication and commitment to their customers are second to none and can be seen in the number of online reviews. Second, Jeremy maintains advanced certifications in Water Damage Restoration and Applied Microbial Remediation from the top-rated indoor environmental accreditation body. Jeremy and his crew bring technical expertise and knowledge that very few mold remediation companies in Atlanta can match. Mr. Shelton also holds certifications as a Certified Microbial Consultant through ACAC, American Council for Accredited Certification.

An excerpt from the blog reads, "Everyone has seen mold in their bathroom at some point and removed it. As long as the area of mold is smaller than 10 square feet, the Environmental Protection Agency says it's OK to do that. A larger mold infestation, however, might require you "to open up walls, lift up carpeting or take out fixtures to fully remove it and clean and dry the space thoroughly," Pescow wrote. "A DIY approach means risking?Mold Exposure?Harsh Chemical Exposure?Making the Problem Worse."

In a time when individuals are spending more time than ever at home, indoor air quality is much more important than ever. Homeowner's located within Atlanta, Sandy Springs, Roswell, Marietta, or Metro Atlanta who believe they may be suffering from toxic mold exposure are urged to speak to the MoldStar Remediation team. Consultations are free, and the information provided could prove to be invaluable. Real Estate Agents, Plumbers, and other local service businesses or licensed tradesmen are invited to reach out to the MoldStar Team to be featured on the resources page.
