UK Mobility Stairlifts, a company based in London, UK, has announced that they have recently changed their website to <https://ukmobilitystairlifts.co.uk/> in order to offer a more focused service to customers. They have decided to focus on the stairlift, which allows people with mobility issues, such as the elderly or those with a disability to regain their mobility, enabling them to go up or down the stairs. They offer stairlifts for both straight stairs and staircases with curves, balconies, spirals, angles, and several other features.

Samantha Simmons, a spokesperson for UK Mobility Stairlifts, says, "We're happy to announce that we are focusing on stairlifts, which is reflected in our new website. A stair lift provides the freedom for everyone to go upstairs. As millions of Londoners get older, anyone who wants to do so, should have the option to ride up the stairs in safe and comfortable lift chairs."

UK Mobility Stairlifts works with leading brands in the current stairlift market, which means that whatever the shape of the customer's staircase, they can provide the appropriate stairlift at an affordable price. They offer both brand new and fully reconditioned stairlifts for both bespoke curved and straight staircases. It should be noted that because the lifts are attached to the stairs and not the wall, there will no need to make any structural adjustments for the home.

The most modern stairlifts are slim in design and can be folded away when not in use. In addition, they are designed to move up or down the stairs at a gradual speed to ensure safety. And all of the stairlifts are tested by an independent organization to ensure that they comply with the most up-to-date safety standards.

UK Mobility Stairlifts has formed partnerships with stairlift manufacturers, such as Acorn Stairlifts. Acorn produces some of the most technologically advanced and award-winning stairlifts that have helped thousands of people, not just in the UK but also worldwide, get back their independence and have complete access to their home.

UK Mobility Stairlifts is well aware that stairlifts from Acorn Stairlifts are reliable. However, any equipment with moving parts will require a regularly scheduled maintenance. They suggest that customers have their stairlift serviced every 12 months to ensure trouble-free performance for several years in the future.

For those who prefer to rent a stairlift, UK Mobility Stairlifts sources stairlifts from all of London. Those who believe a residential stairlift will help them continue to be safe and independent in their own homes may want to schedule a free in-home evaluation. The company will be providing a free no-obligation quote.

UK Mobility Stairlifts has a rental scheme that only requires a one off payment that will take care of the cost of administration, installation, and the later removal of the stairlift. After that, a set monthly fee will be charged for the rental period. It is possible to rent curved stairlifts, straight stairlifts, and reconditioned stairlifts. It is important to note that the monthly rental includes all of the repairs and servicing that will be needed during the rental period.

Common uses of stairlift rental are for people who are recovering from a debilitating illness, recuperating after a surgical operation, or learning to walk again. The installation of the rental stairlift may be finished in as short as 24 to 48 hours after ordering. And when the stairlift is no longer required, UK Mobility Stairlifts has expert engineers who will uninstall the unit with minimum hassle.

All potential customers are given a full colour brochure, allowing them to see the whole range of models that are available. The specialists who will be installing the stairlift do not just meet but surpass the National Home Accessibility Expectations and guidelines. Customer service is available 24/7 to ensure the peace of mind of customers.

Those who are interested in learning more about stairlifts may want to check out the UK Mobility Stairlifts website, or contact them on the telephone or through email.
