December 21, 2020 -
Express STD Testing is a professional site that provides online STD testing services. Apart from chlamydia testing services, the site also provides chlamydia information.

According to the site, ?Chlamydia is a sexually transmitted disease that is caused by a bacterium called Chlamydia trachomatis. Reports from the CDC indicate that there are roughly 2.86 million Chlamydia infection cases every year. This makes Chlamydia the top reported bacterial infection in the United States. Chlamydia is in a group of STDs referred to as ?silent? STDs. This is because you can have the infection and not know it since it will not show obvious signs and symptoms.?

On matters related to symptoms of chlamydia, they said, ?If the signs and symptoms of Chlamydia appear, they will do so within 1 to 3 weeks of exposure. For women, Chlamydia symptoms include a painful of burning sensation during urination and an abnormal discharge. If the infection is not treated and spreads, women experience pain during sex, nausea, fever, bleeding between periods, and pelvic and abdominal pain. For men, the symptoms include burning or painful sensation with urination and an unusual discharge. If the infection spreads to the rectal area, symptoms for both men and women include rectal bleeding and pain. If you suspect you have been exposed to Chlamydia, you can order a Chlamydia test. This is a simple urine test that can be done within 1 to 5 days of initial exposure. If you take our comprehensive test that covers 10 common STDs including chlamydia.?
