Runner Waist Pack Launched Globally By Govivo

September 17, 2015

September 17, 2015 -
Govivo, a health and fitness business, is proud to announce that they have now made their flagship runner waist pack available on Amazon across the US, Canada, the UK, Germany and France. Meanwhile, the popularity of the flagship product has encouraged Govivo to develop new products. One example is the newly released running belt designed for larger-sized smartphones like the iPhone6 Plus. This product can be seen on http://www.amazon.com/Lifetime-Warranty-Running-Belt-Reinforced/dp/B00U1QFN78.

"We were almost overwhelmed by how popular our runner waist pack has been," says the Media Director of Govivo. "This has led to us feeling confident enough to offer it across international markets and to launch further products. Additionally, we are now developing more items to add to our collection and these will be available some time during this fall."

Govivo's focus is on health and fitness products. So far, they have launched a number of sports accessories, as well as all-natural supplements. These products, except for the supplements that are only available in the US, are now available across the different international markets.

The popularity of their runner waist pack led them to release a number of subsequent products, including a reflective vest, reflective strips, and various supplements. To date, however, their runner waist pack continues to be the most popular of all, with many positive reviews having been left by satisfied consumers. "The GoVivo Running Belt is fantastic," says Vincent's Nana Sunni. "I love how it's constructed. First off it has a nice wide elastic belt that adjusts rather easily and is made for us bigger women not just thin men and women. This is an added plus for me. Next I love how big the main pocket is. It allows me to carry my smartphone as well as a wallet and my keys can go in the smaller mesh pocket. The fact that it's water resistant means that I won't get caught in the rain and my phone will be protected during a storm."

Govivo is a family owned business. Their focus is most strongly on customer satisfaction.
