Local community bloggers in Dallas, Texas, are talking about a book written by Dallas local, Natallia Padilla. The book, titled ?Local? is designed to provide resources for new residents, refugees and immigrants.

Padilla created this book with the help of a Dallas based non-profit called the Vickery Meadows Youth Foundation. In a NBC 5 DFW post published on December 17th, they state, ?A North Texas woman is doing something good to help immigrants and refugees more quickly acclimate when they come to Dallas. Natalia Padilla helped put together ?Local,? a bilingual coloring guidebook full of resources that serve new residents, immigrants and refugees. It?s all through her educational push DSGN For Us. ?It comes with a set of illustrations created by immigrant kids,? Padilla said.

Some of the bloggers mentioned above are noting that this book comes at a critical time. Earlier in the year, the Dallas Observer wrote about the worrying condition of immigrants in Dallas. The post, published on May 15th, states, ?Now, the old, cramped apartments are home to families from Liberia, Myanmar, the Democratic Republic of the Congo and many more countries. When school is in session, dozens of languages can be heard in the hallways in nearby schools. Recently, those hallways have been bare, and the apartments of Vickery Meadow are bursting at the seams with quarantined children and teens, some of whom are sick with COVID-19. Martha Stowe is the Executive Director of the Vickery Meadow Youth Development Foundation. By her own description, her job is all about ?giving children a great life in Vickery Meadow.? But you can?t do that without helping the parents, too, so Stowe and her staff are well acquainted with practically every family in the neighborhood. The most immediate problem is the mere act of quarantining, she says.?

Among other announcements, Ward Maedgen Accident Attorneys takes this post as an opportunity to show their support, stating that they would like to wish, ?Natalia Padilla and the rest of the Vickery Meadows Youth Foundation the best of luck in all their charitable endeavors.?

Ward Maedgen is a lawyer who has worked hard to build his law office on a simple premise, which is proudly relayed on his website, The message is: ?Everyone, regardless of their financial status, deserves dedicated, zealous representation. Everyone should have a fair chance in every case in or out of the courtroom.? He has been named in D Magazine?s ?The Best Lawyers in Dallas? in the years 2007 and 2008, and listed for 2004, 2011 ? 2016 in SuperLawyers®, a Thomson Reuters service. He has also been Board Certified in criminal law by the Texas Board of Legal Specialization. Maedgen is able to bring a unique perspective to the table, based on many years of experience in the courtroom as a former assistant district attorney in the state of Texas. Many of his cases have been featured in both television and newspapers, including the Dallas Morning News, Fort Worth Star Telegram, WFAA Channel 8, KTVT Channel 11, KXAS Channel 5, FDFW Fox 4 news and Fox News.

It is worth noting that there are very few personal injury attorneys in the area who have the exhaustive trial background that gives Maedgen his arsenal of strategies in jury trials, expert testimony, cross examination and other courtroom skills. This range of skills are what he has earned over years of hard experience. Similarly, his law firm has many years of experience in successfully representing clients in small as well as profoundly serious personal injury cases. In addition to vehicle accident cases, the firm has fought for victims of wrongful death claims, workplace injury, sexual assaults, trade school fraud and much more. The firm has also garnered unique experience in serious cases involving Complex Regional Pain Syndrome (CRPS), Reflex Sympathetic Dystrophy (RSD) and even brain and spinal cord injury.

The firm?s dedication to their clients is evident in their many positive reviews. Cristal R. states in a 5-Star rated testimonial on the firm?s website, that, ?Ward was excellent, and worked diligently to ensure that I received the settlement I deserved from the insurance company, as the insurance company was initially unwilling to pay very much on the claim. He was very knowledgeable, and he always made sure to keep me updated on each step of my case. Without him, I would not have received the settlement I did. Thanks so much, Ward!?
