Advance Yourself, a Coolum Beach, Queensland company, has recently announced the launch of their professional resume writing services. The company offers a range of services designed to assist in the job search and hiring process.

Owner and CEO of Advance Yourself, Tom Hannemann, has been providing professional resume writing services since the early 1990's. Experienced in Human Resources, Hannemann knows what it takes to impress potential employers. He states, "You have to show them why they should hire you, and your resume provides the first impression that they can get. You want it to build you up, to make you look like someone that the company just cannot function without."

A study recently posted by Forbes states that recruiters are 60 percent more impressed with resumes that are professionally written. Advance Yourself provides assistance in this area.

"We can make anyone's resume really stand out," states Tom Hannemann. "That's what we do, and we can ensure that your resume would be better organized and more readable than others that may be lying on the same pile. That's exactly what it will take to get you noticed, to get you hired."

The study on Forbes states that Human Resource recruiters surveyed believe that resumes written by an experienced professional are nearly twice as likely to be organized and more readable, which is an important thing when it comes to hiring.

Matt, an HR specialist, states, "When HR goes through stack after stack of job applicants, it comes down to the best looking resume. After a while, every one of them start looking the same, except the one that is organized, readable, and really has that 'wow' factor."

Advance Yourself offers services that help job seekers to interpret the impact and benefits of their achievements and experience, and ensure that potential employers note these benefits when glimpsing at the resume. They offer services that include resume writing, interview coaching, and overhaul of professional website profiles.
