September 15, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

HQ SEO, a business in Cardiff, Wales, United Kingdom, is now offering all potential customers a free proposal to help improve their online rankings. The business offers full service SEO packages, local, national and global, and they believe they can help any company get found online. Those who are interested may want to visit their website at <http://hqseo.co.uk/>.

"We are an independent SEO consultancy service in Cardiff with a number of other offices across the UK," says Tom Buckland from HQ SEO. "We work according to one principle, which is to increase the profits of our clients. To achieve this, we help create digital marketing campaigns for them that help them generate leads, clients and sales by being highly ranked on the search engines. We encourage anyone to contact us for a free proposal, so they can see what we can do for them."

In terms of SEO services, the business focuses on local, national and global SEO. In terms of local SEO, they help businesses that have just a single location and need local customers. This includes driving instructors, layers, estate agents, architects and so on. Essentially, these are clients that only offer their services in one specific geographical location.

For national SEO, the focus is specifically on the United Kingdom. As such, HQ SEO will work on having their clients ranked on google.co.uk. They help businesses create a recognized brand, which helps the search volume for the name of the business increase. "Having a powerful brand presence is vital for national businesses," adds Tom Buckland. "We will work incredibly hard to create that positive brand image and reputation that national businesses are looking for."

Finally, HQ SEO offers global SEO packages. These are suitable for businesses that have customers all over the world. They will create promotions working together with the entire digital marketing team. It will include paid advertising, PR, video marketing and social media marketing. For these customers, a plan lasting between six months and a year will be created in order to develop a globally recognized online brand that dominates Google.
