January 18, 2021 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Dallas federal prosecutor Attorney Erin Nealy Cox has announced that she is stepping down from public office. Cox served as Dallas' top federal prosecutor for three years.

Nealy Cox is a cybersecurity expert and former federal prosecutor in Dallas who was sworn into office in November 2017 after being nominated by President Donald Trump. As U.S. Attorney for the Northern District of Texas, she was responsible for prosecuting federal crimes in an area that covers about 8 million people in 100 counties in northern and western Texas.

During her time in office, she handled the prosecution of federal crimes in the Northern District of Texas with the help of more than 120 attorneys across five regional locations. Her team also dealt with civil litigation cases where the government is involved. One of her most notable achievements was shutting down the online sex marketplace CityXGuide.com. Cox has a long track record, including her service on the Attorney General's Task Force on Violent Anti-Government Extremism and the Justice Department's Religious Liberty Taskforce.

North Texans have been talking about Cox's resignation, and media outlets have covered this turn of events quite extensively. In fact, Ward Maedgen Accident Attorneys, a local Dallas attorney's office, has even shared a blog post about it on their website.

Ward Maedgen Accident Attorneys is one of the leading law firms in the area that provides legal representation for people who find themselves involved in accidents. They can handle cases involving wrongful death claims, workplace injury, sexual assaults, trade school fraud and more. They can also deal with more complicated cases that involve brain injury, spinal cord injury, Complex Regional Pain Syndrome (CRPS), and Reflex Sympathetic Dystrophy.

As noted on their website, Ward Maedgen Accident Attorneys was founded by the attorney Ward Maedgen, who built the firm on the belief that every person, no matter their financial status, deserves to receive dedicated legal representation and have a fair chance in court. Maedgen has several years of experience as a former assistant district attorney in Texas. His extensive trial background has equipped him with a huge arsenal of strategies and courtroom skills that few personal injury attorneys can match. The knowledge that he has in jury trials, expert testimony, and cross examination can only be earned with years of hard work and experience in the field.

Ward Maedgen Accident Attorneys may be a small law office, but they have the ability to take on large companies. The firm has built a reputation of integrity, trust and skill over the course of the numerous cases they have handled. They assure their community that they will fight instead of settling for a compromise that is less than what their clients deserve. Their article on Cox's resignation can be found on their blog, alongside similar posts that cover a wide range of local topics.

Ward Maedgen Accident Attorneys has received great reviews for their services. Alexis Cavanaugh says in a 5-Star Google review, "I heard Ward Maedgen was a good personal injury lawyer. When Jay needed one, I didn't hesitate to recommend Ward! He was unsure at first, saying it will only make the matter worse, and it will probably take so much of his time. But, after exchanging thoughts about the advantages and disadvantages of getting Ward's service, he gave it a shot! Jay couldn't appreciate my insistence more as it only took him two weeks, and he got the settlement he deserved. He didn't experience any hassle at all, in fact, Ward made sure that everything was taken care of accordingly! So, to anyone who's having second thoughts on getting a personal injury lawyer, give it a try! I'd say, give Ward Maedgen a try!?"

Jamie Cruz says in another 5-Star Google review, "I was referred to Ward after having issues with a previous attorney for a car accident, and I'm glad I did because I love Ward. He's very personal, professional and takes his time to gather all the information for your case. He even takes the time to thoroughly explain to you any questions you may have regarding your case and is very open and honest about the outcomes of it. One of the best lawyers I've been in contact with. Thank you!?"
