EAGAN, MN - January 15, 2021 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Eagan, MN-based Amundson Law Office, which specializes in divorce and family law, cautions people who are about to go through high asset divorces to choose the lawyer representing them wisely. This is due to the specialized nature of high asset divorce cases and the difficulty they present when trying to litigate them. Those at this highly-rated law office state that there is no substitute for experience when it comes to handling this type of divorce case. That's why they are best handled by attorneys that specialize in high asset divorces instead of lawyers from offices that handle a much broader spectrum of divorce cases.

This law office's founding attorney, Lisa Amundson, says, "What makes high asset divorce cases problematic for attorneys is that they usually involve substantial amounts of high worth items such as money, stocks, property, and businesses. When these types of high dollar value assets are at stake in a divorce proceeding, it often creates a very tense and emotional atmosphere as this legal process plays out. This can rattle any family law attorney that is not used to being in this type of emotionally-charged legal environment regularly. Experienced high asset divorce lawyers like myself have learned how to stay calm and unemotional during these types of divorce proceedings, so we can stay focused on getting our clients the best possible outcomes."

This reputable Eagan divorce attorney continued by saying that her experience has led her to counsel her clients to keep a few things in mind as their high asset divorce case is litigated. The first is that despite the emotion and anger that often surrounds any type of divorce case, let alone those with high dollar amounts at stake, she asks her clients to try and control negative actions and words from the very outset of the proceedings. She stated that this helps lead to legal solutions that focus on finding common points of interest and that have benefits for both parties. The firm's founding attorney also stresses to her clients the need to remain flexible as far as developing settlement options and to have realistic expectations going into their high asset divorce proceedings. She says that if her clients stay true to these suggestions, her skill and experience can then be better brought into play so she can work toward getting her clients a favorable divorce settlement.

This law office's founding attorney mentioned that experience and the ability to remain calm plays a role not only in high asset divorce but also during child custody proceedings. This is another specialty of the Amundson Law Office. One that brings its own set of complicated issues and emotions with it because access to children and the right to parenting time is at stake. Attorney Amundson stated that she is fully aware of the potential downfalls and the seriousness of child custody cases so she and the other attorneys at her law office pour all of their energy into them to get their clients the outcomes they are seeking. Another asset that she feels she brings when she represents a client during child custody proceedings is that she is a woman child custody lawyer. Many of her clients have told her that this gives them a higher comfort level when she is the one representing them during their child custody proceedings.

Attorney Amundson mentioned that she is also very proud of the fact that most of her law office's clients seek them out because another family member or friend referred them. She says that there is no better affirmation of the fact that they handle their family law cases in a highly satisfactory manner than when most of their business comes from the word of mouth from previous clients.
