January 21, 2021 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Personal Injury Lawyer Christopher Schehr is offering his legal services in Charlotte, North Carolina. The attorney claims to get his clients the justice and fair compensation they deserve. The firm has many years of experience handling a broad range of personal injury matters including car accidents, motorcycle accidents, trucking accidents, pedestrian accidents, bicycle accidents, boating accidents, slip & fall accidents, brain injuries, dog bites & attacks, medical malpractice & negligence, nursing home abuse, workers' compensation, and wrongful death.

When it comes to credentials, the Charlotte personal injury lawyer boasts a healthy resume of academic and professional achievement. He attended the University of North Carolina at Charlotte where he received a Bachelor of Arts in Criminal Justice and Political Science. He then attended Thomas Jefferson School of Law, where he graduated Cum Laude. Christopher is a member of the North Carolina Bar Association since 2019. He is also a member of the Mecklenburg County Bar Association since 2019. He is a member of the American Immigration Lawyers Association.

His work experience, prior to starting his own practice, has shaped his outlook and attitude towards every case. At Thomas Jefferson, he focused his legal course work to center around personal injury, criminal defense, and immigration law. While in law school, he worked in the tax clinic and business development clinic where he helped the underserved in the community with establishing their businesses and preparing their taxes for free. He then went on to clerk for a powerhouse firm where he focused on personal injury and construction defect law.

When asked about his philosophy towards law, attorney Christopher Schehr says, "I went to law school with one focus, to become your attorney and to tip the scales of justice in your favor. When I worked in a big law firm there were times when I did not even meet or interact with my clients. I found this to be a major injustice. In a large law firm, your case is just one of many that are being put through an assembly line. I did not feel the personal touch and yearned for a more hands-on approach so that I could give each case the time and care that it deserves. That is why I decided to open my own practice. Since opening my own firm I have gone through the trials and tribulations and have found what works. I will give you individualized focus in every case I take on. When you call, I answer.?

Christopher urges potential clients to follow some guidelines in case they ever need his legal counsel. The first thing that should occur when the unfortunate happens is making a report of the incident. For example, in a car accident case, the client should call law enforcement immediately so that a report can be made. The client's next step should be to immediately contact Christopher to evaluate their case. He advises against speaking with the other party's insurance company until they have spoken with Christopher. Once the police report is complete, seeking medical attention should be the next step. If the client misses any work, they should retrieve evidence to show the number of days and lost wages that result from the accident. If all of the steps are followed, the client can rest assured that they have set themselves up for a strong case. The earlier Christopher is contacted, the better settlement he can achieve, and a better chance at a successful trial.
