

First Hybrid Learning School Soon To Open In Dallas

January 25, 2021 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

The city of Dallas is proud to announce that they are about to open Hybrid Future School, their very first hybrid learning school. According to an article published by ABC 8, the learning model set that will be used in the Dallas Hybrid Future School had already been approved in September of last year. The Dallas Independent School District Board of Trustees held a meeting to discuss and vote on a hybrid learning model to be used for high school education. This was due to the fact that more people than expected chose to have their children attend in-person classes over online classes. In response to this, a hybrid model was created and approved.

As many may have expected, a number of online commenters made some jokes regarding the announcement. One of these comments asked, "So what can my hybrid learn there?" in jest, to which they quickly received an equally comedic reply: "Get off Reddit, dad!" These are only jokes, however, as hybrid learning does not pertain to the education of hybrids.

Instead, it refers to the usage of a combination of in-person and virtual education in order to meet the demand for in-person education despite the pandemic. Under the hybrid learning model that will be implemented at Dallas Hybrid Future School, students will attend in-person classes two times a week and undergo remote learning for three days a week. Classes at the Hybrid Future School are set to start in the fall and will be held at the former Stephen J. Hay School in the Turtle Creek and Oak Lawn area.

Locals and local businesses are helping spread the news about this development. For example, Walnut Central Orthodontics, a Dallas Invisalign specialist shared insight regarding this announcement in the local section of their blog.

Emil George says in a 5-Star Google review, "Before starting treatment here, I had looked up a couple of places to go. I was leaning towards Walnut Central Orthodontics, but wanted to make my decision after going to their free consultation. Now it's been several months since I started my Invisalign treatment here, and I'm very glad I went with this location."

The review adds, "I have seen both Dr. Kanabar and Dr. Choi, who I think are very professional at their work while also super courteous. The rest of their staff is also very polite and makes sure you are comfortable during your visits. I only had one issue in the beginning of my treatment, and they were able to correct it within a reasonable amount of time, and I have had no problems since; only improvement with my teeth. I would definitely recommend them for any of your orthodontist needs. Can't wait to finish up my treatment and see my final results. Thanks, Walnut Central!"

Marcella Velasco says in another 5-Star Google review, "I'm a new patient, and their service has been impeccable since day one. I found Walnut Central through a Google search, and I do not regret it at all that I did. If you are doing the same and looking for a great orthodontist service, stop searching. Go to Walnut Central!"
