

EPS Landscaping and Tree Service Addresses Sprinkler System Maintenance in Pompano Beach

January 27, 2021

Pembroke Pines, Florida - January 27, 2021 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

EPS Landscaping & Tree Service, a respected lawn sprinkler maintenance and repair company in the Pompano Beach, FL area, has just published a new blog on their website. This new blog post addresses three important questions regarding sprinkler system maintenance in Pompano Beach and the surrounding areas. The company added this blog because despite how many people in the Broward County area of Florida have irrigation systems, very few know the answers to a few key questions that relate to the maintenance of them.

Greg O'Connell, the company's co-founder, stated, "It may look like your Pompano Beach irrigation system does nothing more than come on once a day and randomly soak different areas of your lawn, but there is actually a whole lot that goes on to make that process work. That's why it's so important to have us come to your Broward County home or business to perform periodic lawn sprinkler maintenance. It's also why we posted our new blog article which addresses some of the major concerns regarding irrigation system maintenance."

In the newly posted blog article, the first question that was discussed is "Why is proper maintenance of an irrigation system necessary?". The blog cited an old proverb "when given eight hours to cut a tree, use 6 of them to sharpen your ax and 2 to cut the tree" as an example of why lawn sprinkler system prep and maintenance is as or more important than running the system itself. It also talked about how an irrigation system will not perform well if such important parts as its nozzles, gearboxes, and electrical components are not checked regularly to ensure their proper function.

Another question that was brought up in the new EPS Landscaping & Tree Service blog article asked "How frequently should an irrigation system be serviced?". It was mentioned that as with routine automobile maintenance, regular irrigation system maintenance is a great way to make sure that someone has a reliable lawn sprinkler system that works the way it was designed each time they go to use it. The article says it also provides an opportunity to determine if system upgrades would make an irrigation system more efficient and cost-effective. In the blog, it recommended that lawn sprinkler maintenance be done once a year a few weeks before its heavy use season. Those home and business owners that like to have their lawn sprinkler systems winterized, may choose to do it a second time at the end of the irrigation season.

The new blog also addressed why it's important for home and business owners to call professional irrigation companies such as them to perform their routine lawn sprinkler maintenance. In the article, it states that this is necessary because irrigation professionals have specialized training and loads of experience. This is what's necessary to keep lawn sprinkler systems running at peak performance and to help minimize repairs during an irrigation system's lifetime.

In addition to lawn sprinkler maintenance, O'Connell mentioned their company offers a large variety of other yard maintenance services too. Among them is the many professional tree care services that they do. The crews at EPS Landscaping & Tree Service are experts at doing such essential tree care tasks as tree removal and stump grinding. These services are intended to 100% reclaim the ground area where a tree once stood so it can then be repurposed. He added that their many different tree trimming services, including palm tree trimming, are excellent for improving the looks of trees in a landscape and also help with overall landscape tree and plant health. They also perform such helpful lawn care services as mowing, weed control, pest control, and fertilization. The company co-founder also says they are proud of the fact that they have now become one of the leading Broward County, Florida landscaping services. He stated the demand for their landscape design, landscape installation, poolscape installation, and hardscape services has never been greater.
