Gaylord Boxes are large corrugated containers made of excellent quality cardboard. They are prized for their extraordinary weight capacities, from 1,000 to 5,000 pounds, and stacking strength, which prevents packed cartons from bulging. These utility boxes come in various sizes and shapes, including rectangular and octagonal, and are usually made to fit pallet sizes. They are easy to assemble as well as fold flat for convenient storage. Gaylord Boxes are reusable and recyclable.

As a leader in selling Gaylord Boxes, ALA Recycling Industries carries a large in-stock selection, including boxes with partial or full bottoms and with various wall thicknesses, ranging from single-wall to five-wall. They also have the capabilities to provide custom boxes built to exact specifications. To prevent leakage or contamination of the contents, customers can purchase plastic liners from ALA Recycling that fit the containers, along with lids.

ALA Recycling sells both new and used Gaylord Boxes by the trailer load or in less-than-trailer-load (LTL) quantities at competitive prices. They provide delivery services for all Gaylord Box purchases.

For those companies wishing to sell Gaylord Boxes (<http://alarecycling.com/gaylord-boxes-selling>) , ALA Recycling has the most effective Gaylord recycling program that minimizes expenses while maximizing recycling revenues by providing pick-up services and then sending the boxes directly to the paper recycling mills. They buy trailer loads or LTL as well as allow sellers to list their boxes on the ALA website.

ALA Recycling has service centers throughout the US to meet the buy and selling needs of Gaylord Box customers, including in Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Houston, Los Angeles, Miami, New York and Philadelphia.
