After quitting partying lifestyle this couple who lived in Manhattan sold everything and went traveling just to deal with boredom.

Now, three years and more than 25 countries later, Vitaliy and Anna, authors of the Raw on the Road blog, want to share their story in the the upcoming book that will teach people how to plan long or short term budget - and sometimes even free - trip. Their book will also contain stories photos from their round-the-world trip. The couple wants to inspire more people to travel the world and show that there are ways to do so even if you don't have any savings.

Vitaliy and Anna traveled 11 months through the United States (where they visited over 35 states), spent 5 months in South America exploring 8 countries, and 11 months in Asia where they got a chance to visit 10 countries and lived for 6 months on the tropical island of Bali, and now they are off to Europe. Thousands of people already follow their adventure on Instagram.

They say, that for the first year and a half of their trip they traveled on a very tight budget and used helpful travel tools such as CouchSurfing, House Sitting, HelpX and ride shares, which not only saved them tens of thousands of dollars, but also made their travel experience more unique.

"It is not just about going from one destination to another. You meet incredible people along the way and experience new things every day. Travel has changed our lives, we will never be the same again," says Anna.

Vitaliy shared, that when they first started traveling they didn't have any stream of income and had almost no savings, but that didn't stop them from pursuing their dream. It took them less than a month to plan everything and sell all the furniture and most of their belongings. They left New York with just a couple of suitcases. Three years later they are still living a nomadic lifestyle, but since then they learnt how to make money from the Internet and now they can afford to travel with comfort. In the upcoming book Vitaliy and Anna will also teach their readers how to earn money while traveling.

Follow this nomadic couple's adventures on Instagram, where they post pictures from their recent trips to India, Myanmar, Peru, Bolivia and other exotic countries, and read their stories from around the world on their Facebook page.
