January 29, 2021 -

Tuscaloosa, Ala. ? Over the last year, the state of Alabama has made great strides in reforming its standards for the cash bail industry. Following the Alabama Bail Bond Regulatory Act enacted in mid-2020, bail bond agents in Tuscaloosa and across Alabama are now required to attend regular continuing education courses provided by the Alabama Professional Bail Bonding Board. This is a task local bail bonding professionals, Ruby and Jennifer Collard are happy to do.

The Continuing Education classes were offered in two formats to accommodate the COVID-19 pandemic: in-person or via Zoom to those who registered before the end of 2020. The classes offered the opportunity to become certified in various techniques of the profession. Classes in handcuffing techniques or how to de-escalate situations were offered in addition to a course discussing the Ethics in Bail, featuring local attorney and lobbyist Phillip Kinney, Esq. These continuing education courses provide not only the required licensing but gives the bail bond agents invaluable tips and tools to be successful in their industry.

"Providing our clients with the best in quality bail bond service is our priority. We complete continuing education each year to ensure our clients are always receiving quality service. Each year we look forward to completing continuing education courses while providing our clients with exceptional bail bond service" said Ruby Collard, owner of Alabama Bail Bonds.
