

The Rules For Obtaining A Visa For Work Travel Are Changing, New Article Details

September 15, 2015

September 15, 2015 -
London, UK, SEP 10, 2015 ? In keeping with their mission to raise educate travellers on the VISA process, VisaCompare (www.visacompare.com) has just published a new blog post entitled 'Visa Compare - Visa Price Comparison Company'. This topic is becoming more important as more people move abroad to find work and all of them will require a visa.

The article discusses how for some Visa applicants the process can be fraught with difficulties such as those a recent theatre group from Georgia who had hoped to perform in Manchester, UK, this summer, who were unfortunately refused entry. In particular, this group was unable to provide sufficient proof of income with their paperwork.

The article states that for those seeking to enter the UK, it would be a wise choice to use a company such as VisaCompare as the UK is becoming stricter and changing their entrance rules, especially for Chinese investors.

As a comparison search engine and to build trust with their customers, all VisaCompare immigration and visa companies within their database are vetted and all accreditations from regulatory bodies such as MARA, ICCRC, OISC and IAA are checked for compliance prior to acceptance on the site.

An internationally owned and funded comparison search engine, VisaCompare is an independent company with no preferences or affiliations to any country, immigration company/immigration service provider or destination, although they have offices globally in Hong Kong and London. Their mission is to provide help specifically with the visa application process and acquisition to those seeking to connect with immigration companies and service providers worldwide.
