Advanced Injury Care Clinic in Nashville has posted a new blog post that can be read here: https://www.advancedinjurycareclinic.com/blog/what-happens-to-your-body-during-a-car-accident.The blog post states that car accidents can wreak havoc on vehicles and drivers, causing significant economic and non-economic losses. The human body can suffer a lot in an auto accident in Nashville, including life-altering injuries. ?Our bodies aren't designed to stand up to modern damages like auto accidents." The top Nashville car accident doctor is the best person to go to for treatment after an accident.

?Your average car weighs over 3,000lbs. So, on average, every vehicle on the road will be at least 3,000 pounds, and that's before you take larger pickups and commercial vehicles into account. Add in the speed of the vehicles, and you have a recipe for disaster.?

When one car crashes into another, it can have devastating effects on the drivers and passengers. The blog post explains that a car crash is made up of three separate collisions, stating that first there is a collision of the vehicle with another object. This collision is often so forceful that the driver?s body collides with something in their car. Internal organs can even collide with the body.

The blog post warns that there is no way to prevent the body from being shaken around during a collision, resulting in pain and injuries. During high-speed car wrecks, the human body tends to absorb some kinetic energy from the vehicle, raising the risk of injury. A victim of a car accident in Nashville may also suffer from back injuries, which pose a risk of lifelong disability. The blog post details the types of back injuries in an accident.

In a previous press release, Advanced Injury Care Clinic Suggests Type of Doctors Accident Victims Should See. Neck injuries are also fairly common in auto accidents.
