Softwasherz, a company that specializes in pressure washing in Mobile Alabama, has been successfully cleaning surfaces around homes and businesses for many years now. That experience combined with the advanced training they have received has made them realize that pressure washing is by no means a one-size-fits-all job. That's why they match the pressure washing techniques and the equipment they use to accomplish specific types of pressure washing tasks. It's something that helps them safely and effectively get all types of surfaces cleaned and looking like new.

A company representative, Jyn Laire, says, "We strive to be one of the most versatile and hard-working pressure washing services in Mobile and the surrounding communities. It's something we can do because we have the experience, proper equipment, and environmentally-friendly cleaning solutions that are necessary to safely do even the most difficult cleanup tasks around your home or business."

The company representative went on to say that their high-pressure washing services are very popular in the Mobile area. That's because they can get even difficult surfaces such as concrete and stucco looking like new. She says their locally-owned and operated company knows how to match the right tips and so forth to expertly do any type of pressure washing task that's best done using high PSI water spray. Some of the different types of jobs that they do where high-pressure washing is recommended include patio, pool deck, gutter, driveway, and concrete walkway cleaning. High-pressure washing also works very well when the company is performing any type of rust removal service.

Laire mentioned that they just don't show up for every job and start blasting away with high pressure either. That's because there are some jobs that high-pressure washing can do more harm than good. She gave as an example their roof cleaning service. It was stated that for these types of jobs it's preferable to let the advanced cleaning solutions they use work their magic and then apply a much gentler spray of water to rinse the roof clean. The company representative says this is especially important on roofs that are covered by shingles because too much pressure when cleaning them can greatly reduce the life expectancy of most types of shingles. This is also the reason why people who need their roofs washed in Mobile, Alabama should consider an experienced and proven company like them to get their roofs looking like new. She gave other examples of cleaning jobs where impactful chemicals and low-pressure spray are best used such as washing siding, lawn furniture, painted surfaces, and when wooden deck cleaning. They always use low pressure when doing such tasks as their popular fleet washing services too.

Those who have used the company's high- and low-pressure washing services rate them very highly. Cole Perkins stated, "I know the owner. Consistently dependable, hard-working, and honest. They'll do a good job and be straightforward about pricing, services, etc. If anything goes wrong - they'll make it right. What more can you ask for?" Richard Deloach wrote in his 5-star review, "Had them come out to do a roof, house, and concrete cleaning. They did the job so well it was pretty eye-opening! I'll definitely be calling them back before any major holidays. Try them and you'll be happily surprised too. They even did well to take care of the wife's plants and took other necessary precautions. Great job!"
