March 02, 2021 -
February 2021, Heber City, UT - New Perspectives approaches their teenage clients differently as more young adults rely on this practice.

The Young Adult Life Coach team in Utah offers a motivational approach based on current research and best practices. "Rather than isolating students from real-life situations and experiences, we immerse young adults in the local community," the company states.

The New Perspectives team approaches their young clients with a deeper understanding of the issues they face. Their team works together with their clients in identifying their needs, goals, and desired outcomes. This approach allows them to identify challenges and develop a plan of action to create the life the young adults want.

The life coaching team also highlights the need for having a unique, individualized plan for each client. According to New Perspectives, this intentional process gives a foundation for developing a structure that allows young adults and their life coaches to reach mutually-agreed goals. Each of their programs is also suited to the unique personalities and challenges of each client.

New Perspective believes that matching students' needs to the optimal amount of support and structure are crucial to creating an environment where young adults thrive. The team that specializes in Life Coaching For Young Adults says that too little structure can leave young adults floundering, isolating, and feeling overwhelmed, often resulting in feelings of shame as they lose confidence in their ability to make progress.

"Instead of predetermined levels or program stages, we utilize an ongoing process of evaluation aimed at keeping us in the student's "sweet spot" for optimal growth."

New Perspectives also emphasizes building connections and a sense of belonging in the larger environment. Their coaches help students choose a path forward, working alongside them while gradually reducing support as change is internalized.

Aside from life coaching, New Perspectives also has a team of experts in peer mentoring, clinical, academic employment, career, and recreation. "Our team of specialists are passionate about providing life coaching support to young adults with learning differences in ways that build on strengths and dreams," the company says.
