Amundson Law Office, a firm that serves the Twin Cities Metropolitan Area and surrounding areas with quality representation during family law and divorce proceedings, has revealed that a significant percentage of their caseload comes from cities in Dakota County, such as Burnsville and Eagan, and the immediate surrounding area because their office is based in Eagan, MN. Lisa Amundson, the firm's principal lawyer, is an experienced and effective female divorce attorney who makes sure that her clients fully understand how the law applies to their particular situation.

Lisa Amundson herself says, "The very prospect of divorce creates an array of daunting questions and emotions. Questions about finances, the children's future and how to divide assets accumulated over years of marriage require can be intimidating and make it difficult to take the first steps."

Lisa Amundson wants couples who are divorcing to realize that even in an emotionally charged situation, it is vital to have an attorney who can focus on securing their future and undertakes a sound strategy for legal decision-making. At the firm, they really understand that going through the process of divorce can be difficult, which is why they are always focused on advocating for their client's best interests in the legal proceedings to ensure that they will be able to focus on starting a new life for themselves.

Lisa Amundson will carefully work with the client to fully understand his or her situation to be able to provide the answers to any questions that the client may have. The firm provides a free initial consultation to any person who asks for it and is facing a divorce or any other family law issue. This initial meeting with the lawyer will provide the client with the opportunity to ask questions and to find out if the particular law firm is suitable for him or her.

The divorce process will have a number of steps. The first step is, of course, the filing of the divorce, which involves the sending or receiving of the paperwork needed to petition the court for a divorce. The next step is the filing for temporary custody and/or support, which provides some structure while going through divorce process. The third step is the discovery process, which provides both parties with equal access to the various documents for the retirement accounts, home financing, and other important financial information.

The fourth step has to do with issues regarding custody and finances. This is where many divorcing couples come into conflict. Attorney Lisa Amundson, as Eagan MN divorce attorney, will ensure that her client's rights are protected during the process and will strive to get the best possible outcome. The fifth step is the negotiation process. Here, the divorce lawyer will use her experience and deep understanding of the law to know when to keep fighting and when to stop fighting and accept a compromise.

The sixth step is to go to trial or to reach a settlement. After both parties have settled on all key issues, it would be time to submit the agreement for approval to the family law court. However, if both parties failed to reach a settlement, they will need to go to trial.

Attorney Amundson is licensed to practice law in all Minnesota District and Federal courts. She is a member of the Minnesota State Bar Association, Hennepin County Bar Association, Dakota County Bar Association, and also a member of the Family Law section.
