March 10, 2021 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Pompano Beach, FL based National Restoration Experts (NRE) is pleased to share that they are offering a comprehensive series of water damage restoration services to local residents as well as communities in the surrounding areas. Having worked in the region for many years, the company has long earned a reputation for being one of Pompano Beach's most trusted providers.

NRE approaches each job with two main forces: a crew of experts and professional-grade equipment. According to the company, this allows their team to overcome every challenge a property may pose both quickly and safely. This is necessary to minimize the amount of water damage a property has to endure (as it gets worse the longer it is left untreated) as well as ensure that residents and workers are not subject to any undue health risk.

Joe Hernandez of National Restoration Experts briefly elaborates, "The first step we take is always to locate and resolve the cause of your water problem. If this involves a leaky or broken pipe, for instance, we will carry out the necessary repairs and help you understand how you can avoid a similar situation in the future. Next, we extract the main body of water, following which we remove any items or furniture that are beyond salvage. Anything that is left is then dried out via dehumidifiers, fans and similar equipment."

A dry environment, however, is not always a clean one, and certain leaks can leave a property more prone to infestations or contamination than others. Hernandez affirms that NRE takes no chances "they sanitize and deodorize the property to ensure it is fit for human habitation once more. The final step, however, is one that many homeowners consider the most crucial: reconstruction. The crew may hang new drywall, lay new carpeting, install new cabinets, refinish hardwood floors and more to restore an area as closely as possible to its former state.

The Pompano Beach water damage restoration provider is able to resolve more than a broken pipe. Their community often calls on them for assistance in the aftermath of storms, floods, burst water heaters, overflowing sewage and much more. Homeowners are also encouraged to seek the company's aid if they are unsure where the source of the water is. NRE provides leak detection and cleanup for just this scenario.

The company boasts a high rating on multiple platforms, with customers routinely praising their excellent service and professional conduct. One of the foremost priorities of the company's work ethic is maintaining a high degree of trust and transparency between contractor and customer, and this is evident in the reviews posted online for National Restoration Experts.

As a 5-Star Google review from Rosee Goldman states, "This was my first homeowners insurance claim, and NRE really treated my family with respect and professionalism. From the middle-of-the-night water cleanup and following remediation all the way through to Anis helping us put the pieces back together, the entire company rose to the occasion to get us back on our feet. I have already personally recommended NRE for a friend looking to do a remodel and will not hesitate to use/recommend them in the future!"

The team at NRE is also aware of how difficult it can be for homeowners to deal with their insurance provider in the event a claim is denied. Fortunately, their experience allows them to help customers navigate obstacles of this nature as well. An excerpt from another top-rated review from Shawn M. on the Better Business Bureau platform explains that, "our insurance company denied the claim. Anise and his team worked diligently with our attorney to get the money needed and make the appropriate repairs. Anis made sure our master bathroom looked better than it ever did before and stayed on top of the job and his team. Although we pray we never need his help again, I know that if we do, Anis will be there and continue to provide excellent service as he always has."
