Central Texas Spine Institute PLLC (CTSI), an Austin, Texas based medical center which specializes in caring for the spinal cord, is reaching out to raise awareness of their Spinal Cord Stimulator Implants service and the many advantages it offers. The procedure is meant to help patients who suffer from chronic pain and other similar conditions.

?Spinal Cord Stimulation is a procedure created to relieve the chronic pain that most treatments failed to overcome,? says Central Texas Spine Institute. ?It utilizes a tiny device and wires that emit electrical signals to your brain, effectively masking the pain you feel in your lower body. It?s not a complicated procedure, but the thought of installing a device on your body that can affect electrical impulses is scary for some people."

Spinal Cord Stimulator Implants are just one of the many devices and procedures available at Central Texas Spine Institute. The private medical practice offers everything from diagnostic services to conservative treatment modalities and even spinal surgery. Dr. Randall F. ?I had back surgery when I was 15 and for the past 10 years I have been in pain,? says Beth, one of the spinal care center?s patients. ?So, naturally, I was very hesitant to have surgery again. I've done PT, seen chiropractors and done everything I could to help for a decade. And honestly, I had forgotten what it was like to not feel pain when I wake up in the morning. Dr. Dryer told me in my first appointment that I didn't have to live with this pain. I was very nervous and hesitant, but Dr. Dryer took the time to explain the procedure to me thoroughly and I took a chance. I thank God I did, because I feel so much better! I'm writing this six months post-surgery, and I can actually go about my day without being in excruciating pain. I highly recommend Dr. Dryer. To be able to play with my daughter or even do something as simple as driving without pain is truly a blessing. And even his staff are on point! They are kind, have great customer service and always get me in quickly.?

Another patient, Joseph, says, ?Amazing and friendly staff, knowledgeable doctors and highly experienced surgeons. If you're experiencing any form of back pains, don't wait. Come see Dr. Dryer! He definitely is highly respected in the spinal community for a reason!?
