Damage To Dallas Public Spaces Tallying Into Millions

March 29, 2021

March 29, 2021 -
Millions of dollars? worth of damage was done to the Dallas library and various parks and recreation facilities in the area, such as zoos, arboretum and aquatic facilities, following a winter storm. The library lost more than 38,000 books in the winter storm, and many other pieces of property were severely damaged.

An NBC 5 DFW article that covered the situation explained, ?The Renner Frankford Library in far North Dallas is throwing away more than 38,000 books after last month?s winter storm caused significant damage to the building. Dallas City Councilwoman Cara Mendelsohn tweeted pictures of the damage and explained that along with thousands of books, much of the library such as check-out desks, furniture, and all things with upholstery will need to be replaced. The District 12 Councilwoman said the library holds many memories of the local community, and she hopes to find a viable solution soon. Until a solution surfaces, library users are able to turn in their checked-out materials or order books for pick up through Library to Go at Timberglen Library or Fretz Park Library.?

In response to these developments, local individuals and businesses have taken to multiple forums in order to share their perspectives as well as relay the information to others in their community. One such entity, a local Dallas law firm, recently published an article through their website that aims to comment as well as report on these losses ? and provide links to resources for those who might be looking to help. As a longstanding part of the Dallas community, The Barber Law Firm blog highlights issues that local residents and businesses face.

The personal injury law firm is also offering their services to those who may have been injured as a result of negligence. The firm has more than 17 years of experience helping clients file personal injury claims. They focus mostly on car accidents (as well as other types of negligence claims) and workman?s compensation.

The Barber Law Firm regularly goes up against all kinds of insurance companies, along with their adjusters, to help their clients get the most they can out of a claim. Adjustors work tirelessly to ensure that insurers pay the very minimum, and the Dallas personal injury law firm works tirelessly to counter them at every turn. Fighting insurance companies without the help of an attorney is a surefire way to lose and end up getting very little out of a settlement. With the help of an attorney, one can be sure that they get the best outcome possible. While they make it a point to update their blog and keep people informed, the assistance they offer in this regard forms the lion?s share of the firm?s contribution to their community.

?We fight hard against insurance companies from our multiple office locations in Dallas, Plano, Fort Worth, Grapevine, Irving and Frisco,? says The Barber Law Firm. ?Insurance companies typically send adjusters out quickly to accident victims after an accident to try to settle those claims for as little as possible. However, don?t be fooled ? you have the right to seek fair compensation in court for your losses. It?s best not to accept an offer from an insurance company without speaking with your own attorney who is looking out for your interests. Our firm offers free legal consultations, without an obligation. If you decide that you want to choose another firm to handle your case, you owe us nothing. If you do decide that you want us to handle your case, we work on a contingent-fee basis, which means that you owe us nothing until we get you your compensation.?

The Barber Law Firm has some of the best lawyers in the country, and they know exactly how to handle almost any kind of personal injury case. Clients of the firm regularly leave testimonials in which they thank the firm for helping them with a personal injury case. Adriana, one of the firm?s clients, says, ?I had an accident back in November of 2009. I hired Kris and his team, and they have been very professional and have gone above and beyond to handle my case. I could not be more happy with the results.?
