Richards Electrical Engineering, originally a Melbourne based company, has announced their move to a new location in Noosa Heads, Queensland. The company has more than 40 years of experience in the electrical field, and will now be serving residential and commercial customers in Noosa. Originally founded in 1975, the company is offering a full suite of electrical services for home and business owners in the area.

Ned Richards, founder and owner of Richards Electrical Engineering, states, "We're proud to be offering our services to the area. Making sure that our customers are happy has been our number one goal for more than 40 years." The company currently serves those in the Sunshine Coast area, specifically in Noosa Heads and the surrounding regions.

Richards Electrical Engineering is a small, family owned and operated company. Richards explains, "Keeping our business small and within the family helps us to provide only the highest quality of services. We hire only people we know, and only those who are trustworthy and qualified."

The company will be offering domestic electrical Noosa services for homeowners that include all aspects of electrical care. It should be noted that while they are specialists in commercial and industrial work, they also provide domestic services. Domestic electrical services include pool lighting, as well as residential rewiring, installation of ceiling fans, TV antennas, smoke detectors, and various other residential needs.

The commercial electrical Noosa services include exit and emergency lighting, shop fitouts, display lighting, extra power points, testing, network cabling, and a host of other electrical services for businesses. Richards states that they offer a wide number of industrial services as well for area facilities, and have a qualified staff for installing factory wiring, PLC installations and programming, generator installation and supply.

When looking for an electrician Noosa residents will need to keep the company in mind. The company hopes to secure a long standing customer base in Noosa as they had for many years at their Melbourne location. More about the locally owned company, including a complete listing of the services that they provide can be seen on their website.
