Local Blitz Marketing Enters Second Year In Indianapolis

March 29, 2021

Encinitas, California - March 29, 2021 -
San Diego, CA based Local Blitz Marketing is celebrating their sister location?s second year in operation by highlighting the advantages this wider reach offers their clients. While their San Diego office first launched in 2009, the team only opened their new location in Indianapolis in 2018.

According to the agency?s California office, they were able to support the addition of a second location thanks in part to their ongoing growth in San Diego. In the time since they started offering their services, the company?s reputation for delivering superior online marketing and search engine organization has only served to draw in more clients and bigger projects, exposing them to better opportunities as time went on. As 2018 approached, just under the agency?s 10 year anniversary in the industry, they believed the time was right to take their expertise to new clients in the Midwest market. This had the additional benefit of ensuring that the company as a whole always had an active team in either the East or West Coast time zones ? bolstering their availability to clients whose businesses operate across every time zone in the US. Many of the agency?s existing clientele are already able to attest to this.

?After researching multiple SEO companies around Indiana,? says a 5-Star Google review from Turner

Daugherty, ?I decided to go with Local Blitz. This turned out to be a fantastic choice. Nick and Simon have a ton of experience with the different elements of online marketing and have helped us grow our business. I would definitely recommend them!? This review was posted for the company?s Indianapolis location.

The agency states that clients prefer to work with SEO experts who actually reside in their respective regions instead of attempting to apply their expertise from afar. While a great deal of industry knowledge can be applied on a more universal basis (Local Blitz?s team is also capable of handling a campaign for any part of the country), this approach does not always work on the local level. As such, clients in San Diego and Indianapolis have noticed that agencies which specialize in local search engine organization (as well as online and social media marketing) tend to deliver better results. This can be attributed to each team?s knowledge of their respective markets and what it takes to push a business to the top.

?I had worked with a couple other agencies in the past,? shares another 5-Star Google review from John Galkowski, ?with little results and a lot of cost. I was referred to Local Blitz, and my experience has been amazing. A couple calls to review and discuss the vision, and after a couple weeks of setup we were ready to kick off the social media campaign. The initial impact was immediate, and after the first 30 days the results were shockingly great. They really listened and understood what I was going after, and this has had a huge impact on my business. I truly appreciate what they accomplished.? This review was posted for the agency?s San Diego office. Notably, both of Local Blitz Marketing?s San Diego and Indianapolis offices boast a full 5-Star rating overall, indicative of their clients? overwhelmingly positive experience with the agency?s services and work ethic.

Local Blitz Marketing offers their community access to in-house experts who are passionate about their work and committed to ensuring that their clients find success in their respective industries. Whether this involves SEO, social media marketing or even more conventional strategies such as email marketing, the agency is pleased to provide a comprehensive, customized package that meets all of a business? requirements.
