Hard Drive Recovery Group, a data recovery service company in Irvine, CA, has recently published an article titled, "Have You Jumped on The Animal Crossing: New Horizons Bandwagon?" on its website. The blog post points out that the game has become so popular that even celebrities, such as Elijah Wood and Jennifer Lopez, have revealed that they have been playing the game. Other celebrities who seem to have become addicted to the game include Chrissy Teigen and Brie Larson.

The article provides some background information regarding "Animal Crossing: New Horizons," which is the fifth title in the Animal Crossing franchise. It is not an app-based game and it is only available for the Nintendo Switch so people who don't have this gadget cannot jump into the bandwagon.

The players of "Animal Crossing: New Horizon" get to choose an island and then make various developments by gathering resources, fishing, and planting trees. The goal is to create a utopian island with neighbors who are the player's best friends, and having a lot of plants and trees that the player can harvest from. The game is for everyone, which means both kids and adults can enjoy playing the game. The player for this game is a human who can become friends with animals.

The reason for the popularity of the game may be due to the broad range of scenarios that players can choose from, which means that they will get entertained even when they're stuck at home because of the pandemic lockdown. Because the environment for the game is an island, the player can imagine himself or herself outdoors and doing enjoyable things like fishing, planting, and so on. That is appropriate during the current situation where people are being encouraged to stay indoors. Thus, it may seem that Nintendo had perfectly timed the release of the game during the pandemic lockdown, providing people a way to escape from reality, while they are playing the game.

Meanwhile, the game has become so popular that it has become part of pop culture. Celebrities have been praising the game on social media, which is likely contributing to its increasing popularity. Artists are also finding ways to benefit from the game's popularity. For instance, Selena Gomez chose to debut her newest track with Trevor Daniel, "Past Life," in a late night talk show on Twitch that is titled, "Animal Talking." In this talk show, guests are invited to run a life simulator that allows them to chat using cherubic avatars while they are in the comfort of their homes. This talk show exists completely within "Animal Crossing: New Horizons."

Meanwhile, Maureen Davies, a spokesperson for Hard Drive Recovery Group, says, "Have you been playing Animal Crossing: New Horizons as well? It's a good thing to have a break from all the stresses of this world, but let us give you a reality check: You need to act on recovering your missing files! The first step is to get in touch with us to start your data recovery journey."
