October 16, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

The San Diego Wine and Culinary Event Center welcomes brides from around the world who choose beautiful San Diego as the destination for their wedding.

The mild Southern California weather, with access to dozens of beaches, a large variety of activities, and the convenience of an international airport all help to make San Diego the perfect wedding location. The Gaslamp District, which many people find to be buzzing with charm, is another reason this particular venue has become so popular in the past few years.

"We have worked with brides from all over the world who choose San Diego for their wedding destination," adds Mary Robinson. "It is always fun to be able to give them advice and insights on our beautiful city and help them coordinate their entire wedding weekend. We can assist with everything from transportation, hotel accommodations, ceremony and reception site, to rehearsal dinners and even entertainment as needed."

The company has also noted that locals are not the only people interested in getting married at one of their wedding venues. Destination weddings in general have become very popular, with California among the most popular states in the nation for those looking to combine their wedding with a unique getaway, due to the weather, ocean view, and many other perks.

"San Diego has so much to offer I'm not at all surprised it has become such a popular choice for brides who are embracing the growing trend of having a destination wedding," states Mary Robinson.

The San Diego Wine and Culinary Event Center offers wine cellar ambiance, combined with ample reception space, flower lined patios, and a full kitchen. The venue is conveniently located within walking distance to several hotels, restaurants, nightclubs and parks. In addition to weddings, they also host various other events, all of which can be seen on their website.
