SafeAir Certified Mold Inspection Inc., a mold testing and mold inspection company out of Atlanta, GA has launched the latest post in their series of Frequently Asked Questions. In the series, owner and indoor air quality expert Jeremy Shelton dives into various topics submitted by homeowners on the SafeAir website. In the latest post Jeremy answers the question that many potential homebuyers ask ?What Do I Do If Mold Was Found During A Home Inspection?? Jeremy and the SafeAir team have served Metro Atlanta for more than 10 years and it is no surprise that Atlanta continues to trust them with their indoor air quality. The video and corresponding blog post can be found on the company?s website under the blog tab.

When asked for a comment about the post, Shelton had this to say, ?it?s no secret that the housing market is hot right now, and unfortunately for potential homebuyers it is very much a sellers market. Here in Atlanta we?re seeing houses go in minutes often over asking price and with all contingencies waived. However, it is my responsibility to help potential buyers understand exactly what it is they are purchasing. The last thing I want to see is a client purchase their dream home and just to have it end up becoming a nightmare.?

Homeowners located within Atlanta, Sandy Springs, Roswell, Marietta, and other surrounding Metro Atlanta areas suffering from toxic mold exposure are invited to speak with the SafeAir Mold Testing team to schedule a free consultation.
