SYDNEY, NSW - May 14, 2021 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Clean Group is a Sydney-based business that has established a solid reputation when it comes to the commercial cleaning services that they offer. They have done this by tailoring their commercial cleaning plans to meet the specific needs of each business that they serve. This company has become especially well-known for its daily commercial cleaning Sydney services. It's a service that those at this company feel offers many advantages to the businesses that get this type of cleaning done for them.

Regional Operations Manager, Stephen Matthews, says, "Office spaces in businesses that see a high volume of employee and customer traffic pass through them every day are very challenging to keep clean. That's why it's best to leave daily office cleaning tasks to professional commercial cleaning services such as us. We are so confident that we can take the cleanliness of your office space to a much higher level that we are willing to guarantee it."

The company's regional operations manager went on to talk about how their professional office cleaning services can benefit a business. One advantage is that since cleaning is all that Clean Group does, their crews have gotten very good at it. He says that very few in-house cleaning teams can work at the pace their cleaners do and clean to their demanding standards at the same time. A professionally cleaned office is also one that is healthier for employees to work in and that should help cut down on the number of sick days too. Matthews also mentioned how a cleaner working environment tends to boost employee morale and leaves a good impression on customers and others that visit the business. It can be a cost-saving move too as expensive office equipment such as computers lasts longer when not constantly being coated with airborne contaminants that result from improperly cleaned workspaces.

Matthews also talked about what it takes for them to deliver the above-mentioned advantages to their daily commercial cleaning clients. It all starts with their well-trained crews that are led by personnel with many years of experience performing cleaning services in a business environment. He says that enables their crews to do their services in such a way that it keeps floors, desktops, railings, carpets, and other common surface areas in a business in a higher state of cleanliness. It also helps that their commercial cleaning crews use such state-of-the-art equipment as electrostatic sprayers, I-mop scrubbers, and top-of-the-line microfiber cleaning cloths.

The company's regional operations manager also mentioned that the chemicals that they use are safe and environmentally friendly. These chemicals leave no harmful residue at all behind. He stated that they are also a one-stop solution for business cleaning tasks because of their flexibility with their commercial cleaning services. That means that while one company may just want their bathrooms and break areas cleaned, another may want them to clean every nook and cranny of their commercial space. It was also pointed out that they offer periodic deep cleaning services such as their carpet & upholstery cleaning and their specialty COVID-19 Disinfection and Protection Shield applications.

The thorough way that Clean Group goes about performing their cleaning services has also led to them to receive many glowing reviews from their daily commercial cleaning clients. A representative of a local multimedia company that has then clean his facility stated, "Clean Group is very professional and they adhere to very high cleaning standards. Their management is very hands-on and always monitors the cleaning work that has been done. I will recommend Clean Group to any business friends that are looking to get commercial cleaning work done." Another daily commercial cleaning client wrote, "These guys are fantastic. Our office always smells fresh and clean in the morning. I definitely recommend them."
