ManageByStats Introduces Weekly Amazon Training

May 13, 2021

May 13, 2021 -
Beginning this week ManageByStats will host weekly training sessions, covering Amazon and the MBS tools most useful for managing various aspects of an Amazon business. The sessions are planned for every Thursday, at 2 pm EST. Lasting 30 minutes or less, these trainings will be in a mode of fireside chat, informal and conversational, covering a given topic each week, which will be announced in advance. An expert from MBS will preside, with the occasional guest.

?These training sessions are purely a value-add,? says MBS CEO, Philip Jepsen. ?The idea is to offer additional opportunities for our users, giving them more resources to help them boom their Amazon business.?

Each training session will be recorded for later use, being edited to provide ongoing references for the covered topic. ManageByStats offers multiple resources to help Amazon sellers more effectively run their business, and achieve better understanding and insight into the things that will promote growth. These regularly scheduled trainings will add to those, as an expected event each week. Topics covered will run the full gamut, with all things Amazon being the only criteria.

?Having something our users can expect each week provides predictability, and something helpful to look forward to,? says Mister Jepsen. ?This is entirely for the benefit of those trying to sell on Amazon. Yes, we will use MBS tools to help, but the information we?ll be providing is independent of any software. These will be techniques for sellers.?
