

40% of Hiring Decision-Makers Report Workers Have Left for Caregiving Responsibilities in Last Year

May 17, 2021 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Only 30% Say Retaining Working Parents is a Top Company Priority

Despite recognizing the importance of retaining caregivers in the workforce, 40% of U.S. hiring decision-makers report employees have left their company since the start of the COVID-19 pandemic to care for children or other family members. This is according to a new survey from The Harris Poll commissioned by Oxnard staffing agency, Express Employment Professionals.

Of those 40% who left companies for care obligations, 27% said it was for children, while 25% left to care for other family members. Substantial proportions say employees have changed their work schedule (37%) and/or reduced the number of hours they work (32%) due to family obligations.

Although the majority of U.S. hiring decision-makers (79%) believe their company is doing just the right amount to help employees balance work with caregiving responsibilities, more than 2 in 3 (68%) say their employees have expressed an interest in having them offer services to help balance caregiving responsibilities.

Notably, only 32% of U.S. hiring decision-makers say one of their company's most important priorities right now is continually updating programs to accommodate employees who are caregivers, and a similar proportion (33%) say leadership being more flexible in accommodating employees' schedules and needs will be a permanent effect of the COVID-19 pandemic.

When it comes to working parents specifically, more than 3 in 4 hiring decision-makers (78%) agree it is important to their company to nurture and grow working parent leaders within their organization. Still, only 30% say retaining working parents is one of the most important priorities for their company right now.

And, less than 2 in 5 (38%) say their company offers programs to help employees who are parents stay in the workplace; among those, the most common programs are flexible work schedules/flex-time (52%), telecommuting/remote work (44%) and/or employer-funded/subsidized childcare (36%).

There's no doubt the last year has been especially challenging for caregivers, Express CEO Bill Stoller said.

Survey Methodology

The survey was conducted online within the United States by The Harris Poll on behalf of local Oxnard employment agency, Express Employment Professionals between Nov. 16 and Dec. 7, 2020, among 1,002 U.S. hiring decision-makers (defined as adults ages 18+ in the U.S. who are employed full-time or self-employed, work at companies with more than one employee, and have full/significant involvement in hiring decisions at their company). Data was weighted where necessary by company size to bring them into line with their actual proportions in the population.
