June 24, 2021 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Diversacorp is offering new home construction services to the southern Maine market. Their custom home design and build packages include premium features and contemporary finishes that provide unpretentious comfort. From the warm hardwood underfoot to the open concept floorplans, the home becomes a bright, light-filled retreat where luxury and convenience abound for the pleasure of the homeowner.

They offer a variety of plans providing single-level living and two-story homes. It is even possible to choose lots to enable walk-out basements for those who are looking for more finished space. Package prices start in the mid $500,000s.

Diversacorp was founded in 2013 by Nate Libby with the goal of providing the highest quality construction management and development services to its clients and community in York and Cumberland Counties. They have a diverse portfolio of products ranging from single-family homes and multi-unit residential construction and developments to commercial and retail buildings.

They offer various construction services, including design-build, construction management, pre-construction services, and construction services. In design-build, they offer an integrated design-build service for the construction project by uniting the engineer, construction manager, and architect roles. As for their construction manager (CM) services, they will execute the project with care and expertise to make sure that it's successful from start to finish.

With regards to pre-construction services, they can offer a wide range of services, from engineering assessments and schematic design to construction budgeting and scheduling. And with regards to construction services, they provide residential, commercial, and industrial construction services for new construction, renovations, restoration projects, and additions.

After deciding to partner with Diversacorp for a home construction project, one starts the journey of actually building the new home, and people are encouraged to peruse Pinterest, catalogs, magazines, books, and the internet before setting the design appointment. Gathering ideas will help in opening a person's creative flow and make the selection process easier. For example, people may want to consider the process of accessorizing and adding some glitter to the palette.

Meanwhile, for those who prefer it, they also create classic craftsman style and timeless transitional style homes that are move-in ready. In today's busy world, the buyer may choose a home where design choices have already been made, establishing a home that's already designed with a distinct design palate.

It is important to note that they will be assisting the buyer from the beginning until move-in day. They will be available to answer any questions, assist with selecting finishes, arranging construction visits, and all the way to the closing table. They are excited to get to know each customer and introduce him or her to the community.

Nate Libby says, "We take great pride in all of our projects" from the pre-construction process all the way to project close-out. We have created long-term relationships with customers, contractors, and vendors. These partnerships enhance the quality of our projects and the positive impact on the community."

Currently featured is their newest development at Stroudwater Preserve development. Stroudwater Preserve is Portland's latest neighborhood comprised of 44 newly constructed single-family homes providing a range of floor plans and sizes. Using premium construction quality and high-end finish alternatives, from flooring, HVAC, to tile, Stroudwater Preserve offers the opportunity for homeowners to customize their new home to suit their particular lifestyle or preference.
