When asked about Caperton Fertility Institute's mission, the founders say, "Our mission is family. A lot of people struggle to conceive just because they have been dealt a bad hand in their genetics. We want to help everyone who wants to experience the miracle of giving birth. With modern science, we are breaking down barriers that would have kept someone, even as recently as 20 years ago, out of options when it came to having a child of their own. We do this because we believe in the family unit and want to give everyone the chance to feel the comfort of family and having someone to call their own. It is what gets us out of bed every day. It is what drives us to perform to our best abilities with every single patient who walks in through those doors. That is what Caperton Fertility Institute is all about.?

The Institute's fertility doctors, embryologists, advanced care practitioners, patient care coordinators and staff are trained to look after a patient's needs at every step along their journey to parenthood. The clinic has invested in state-of-the-art Assisted Reproductive Technology (ART) that allows them to address a patient's unique needs in many different ways. This can include In Vitro Fertilization (IVF), artificial insemination, TESE and MESA procedures for male factor infertility, Intracytoplasmic Sperm Injection (ICSI), fertility preservation, egg and sperm donation, and the clinic's gestational carrier/surrogacy program. The doctors go through all the available options with a patient and pick the one that best suits the patient's needs. They also provide medical travel and concierge medicine services to those who need them.

The Institute includes a staff of doctors that is consistently recognized among the top 3% of doctors nationally. Caperton Fertility Institute is accredited by the CAP (College of American Pathologists) and is a part of the Fertility Network.

The institute's website includes a contact form where patients may schedule a consultation and get all the information they need to move forward. The website is also home to a blog that discusses various topics that would be an informative read for people who have questions about and/or are seeking fertility treatment.

A website testimonial about a patient's experience with the Caperton Fertility team says, "After 5 years and 14 IVF attempts at clinics around the world we found Dr. Caperton. He is simply the perfect IVF doctor, up to date on all research and technology in the field, has a highly scientific and structured approach, gives great and honest advice, belongs to the very, very top when it comes to IVF success rates, and has a personal and wonderful way of understanding us both as people and patients.
