It is with great pride that Bella Joi announced earlier that their pregnancy marks cream was specially formulated by a US-based naturopathic doctor. Extensive research was done before the final concoction of various natural ingredients has been finalized. Currently, the lotion is being produced in a technologically-advanced US laboratory.

"We are truly proud to tell everyone that our awesome and highly recommended stretch marks lotion was formulated by a naturopathic doctor. The formula is the result of hard work and research in the hope of providing an effective and affordable product that can help nourish the skin especially during pregnancy", says Bella Joi spokesperson, Holly Richards. She further stated, "In our company, we have always put quality on top of our priorities. This is the reason why our product is produced in a US laboratory that follows strict guidelines and protocols when it comes to manufacturing."

With the amount of positive reviews this lotion has received so far, it is safe to say that they are on the right track. In a review by Angie H, she wrote, "I ordered this stretch mark cream for my daughter who just had a baby. She is very pleased with this cream. It is non greasy and has a very pleasant scent. Her stretch marks were about 8 months old and we knew they weren't going to completely go away but this cream really helped lighten them. My daughter even used the cream on some scars that she had. They are lighter and less noticeable as well. We are very pleased with this cream and she has already asked if I will order more for her before this one is empty. I would definitely recommend this cream for anyone who is pregnant or has any stretch marks.?

Bella Joi cream is a mixture of various butters, oils and antioxidants. Specifically, it contains Shea butter, Mango butter, Cocoa butter, Jojoba Oil, Rose Hip Seed oil, Olive oil and Aloe. To prevent the greasy feeling, Capric Triglyceride was also added to the concoction. When use regularly, this cream helps in nourishing and moisturizing the skin through the natural properties of its ingredients.

This cream, which is one of the most highly-praised products of Bella Joi is still available online at Amazon.
