New Louisville KY Contractor Bringing a Fresh Perspective to Home Remodeling and Custom Cabinetry Projects

June 03, 2021 -
Norsemen Company is a new home remodeling and custom cabinetry contractor that?s already making a name for itself in the Louisville, Kentucky area. A big part of that is the fresh perspective that the co-owner brothers bring to their craft. They specialize in making dream spaces come to life. Adding to their quick rise in popularity is the seamless way that they manage their projects from start to finish and how they are always there to help guide their clients throughout the process.

Company co-owner, Benjamin Stenson, says, ?I want homeowners to get more than just a 'pretty room.' I want to create spaces that you are proud of and want to show off to friends and family.? Stenson along with his co-owner brother, Luke, familiarized themselves with remodeling at an early age by spending time alongside their craftsman father in Michigan?s upper peninsula. From this their style that combines a timeless look, a tendency for perfection, and beauty in simplicity and functionality was born. The way that they practice their craft was also shaped by their Scandinavian roots. He mentioned that they strive to be a contractor that goes above and beyond what?s expected of them and a big part of that is doing work that has a certain ?wow? factor to it.

Stenson added that even their newly launched website reflects the fresh perspective that they bring to their remodeling and custom cabinetry work. It features a modern design that is not overly cluttered with photos and text but still gives customers the important information that they need about the company?s services. The highlight feature of the newly launched website is its gallery page which nicely shows off the quality of work that they at Norseman Company do. Also included in the new website is a page that describes the process that they use to get their projects to turn out better than their customers expected and a form on the ?contact us? page that will help their customers schedule a design consultation with them. The newly launched website can be viewed here at https://www.norsemenco.com/.

The company co-owner also went on to describe the many different remodeling services that they offer. This includes their kitchen and bathroom remodeling work. These are two types of spaces that if remodeled right can help change the look and feel of an entire home. Kitchen remodeling projects of theirs can also take advantage of their extensive custom cabinet and countertop installation experience. He says they are also very proud of the cabinet refacing work that they do. This is something that many kitchen contractors are reluctant to take on because of how difficult it is to get cabinet refacing to turn out looking good. The co-owner says this type of work is no problem for them because they have been doing it from an early age. What makes cabinet refacing even more rewarding for them is it saves their customers from having to go to the extra expense of replacing their kitchen cabinets during a remodel.

So far reviews on this contractor?s service have been highly favorable. Shauna Breeden checked off on her 5-star review that the company showed professionalism, punctuality, quality, responsiveness, and value. Breeden stated, ?After nearly a year of back-and-forth with my husband over whether it was the right time to start a kitchen remodel, I finally gave in to the compromise of getting some quotes. We were told cabinet refacing was a thing of the past, but Ben's team are truly professionals at transforming an aged kitchen. We couldn't recommend them more enthusiastically. They're knowledgeable, responsive, creative, hard-working, and fairly priced, and got our job done right on budget and on time. The result is beautiful and has exceeded our expectations. It was truly an enjoyable experience to work with people as patient and committed to quality as Ben and Luke. Looking forward to starting our next project with them!?

This home remodeling in Louisville, KY contractor also offers their services to those in La Grange, Goshen, Anchorage, Crestwood, Prospect, New Albany, Clarksville, and more. People in their service area that would like more information on what they do can contact them by phone, email, or they can fill out and send in the above-mentioned design consultation form on the new website.
