October 27, 2015

October 27, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

JGM Properties, a Bloomington, Minnesota based company, has announced office space for lease in Brooklyn Center. In correlation with the available leasing opportunities, the company has released a list of things to look for when searching for suitable office space. Company spokesperson Eli Russell states, "We have Brooklyn Center office space for lease, and can help businesses to choose the best suitable space for their office needs."

JGM recommends choosing an experienced real estate advisor when choosing office space. They want to emphasize that while budget is always an important factor to consider when renting or leasing business space, it is not the only factor that needs to be addressed. "You have to also ensure that the location is right for your specific business, and that you have chosen a space that offers the amenities needed to run your business effectively," explains Eli Russell.

The real estate company offers advice to clients looking for warehouse, office, tech, or medical space for rent or lease. They recommend establishing a budget prior to searching for available properties, and then making a list of amenities that are essential for running the business.

The company also wants to point out that there are always negotiation possibilities for properties that meet many, but not all of the business needs. "We'll help to negotiate the best cost, the best amenities, and overall the best possible space for any business need," explains Eli Russell.

Russell also suggests to those who are interested in the Brooklyn Center spaces that are currently available to contact JGM Properties as early as possible as spaces may fill up quickly. He adds that those who may have a deposit in full may be able to negotiate a few months of free rent, which is particularly attractive to new businesses. He point out that businesses who get into a particular location first often get the best deals, and that JGM Properties can help to ensure that clients get a good location, with amicable terms.
