Dependable Homebuyers is a family-owned business providing real estate services in Baltimore. "We have seen an increased interest for homes with modern kitchens after renovating," says John Foster of Dependable Homebuyers. The kitchen is one of the most prominent features in a house, and it can help make a property stand out among other properties for sale. When someone is selling a house that has been renovated and have improved on all current trends with fresh new white appliances and granite countertops to go with sleek stainless steel stove tops, not only will it set itself apart from others."

Along with futuristic appliances and luxury spaces that modern buyers cannot live without (such as dishwashers or walk-in closets), a refurbished kitchen is one of the most sought-after features for properties these days. "Homes on the market today are in fierce competition, which includes having a newly renovated kitchen," says Foster. Renovating a kitchen can be a challenging task, but it does not have to be overwhelming. In order to know what needs changing and what should stay as-is, take time before starting on a renovation project and create an inventory list so that all renovations are planned out in advance. For instance, a property owner might decide that some cabinets need updating while others don't; or maybe the existing countertop will suffice if they are updated with new hardware like these sleek brushed stainless steel handles from Home Depot.

A great way to attract buyers is by adding state-of-the art, one of a kind and creative home amenities like a wine cooler or an espresso machine. These features are quite expensive but they're worth the price! To get a better idea of what's common in the local Baltimore housing market consult with top real estate agents from Dependable Homebuyers.

"Nobody can overestimate how important it is these days to have top of the line appliances and every convenience possible in a kitchen," says John Foster of Dependable Homebuyers. "It's how we spend most of our time at home after all."

Baltimore battles fierce competition in the housing market, and new homebuyers are looking for modern kitchens. With the housing market being as competitive as it is, kitchen amenities have become an important factor for homebuyers. One way to make a property stand out is by making improvements on the existing kitchen which includes a variety of cabinet finishes and modern appliances that provide both functionality and aesthetic appeal. These are just some suggestions from the expert at Dependable Homebuyers.

The kitchen should be a place that not only looks good, but also feels good. When selling a home in Baltimore, make sure that the lighting is right in order to highlight any interesting features on appliances or countertops while maintaining an overall color scheme throughout all rooms for coherence. Remodeling dated counters and swapping them out with sleek stone tiles, easily available in most large modern cities, will help create the exquisite look which many modern-minded buyers desire.
