It is a Grade I race run over a distance of 9.5 furlongs on dirt. Colts and geldings carry 126 pounds (57 kg); fillies 121 pounds (55 kg). The second jewel of the Triple Crown starts two weeks after Kentucky Derby day and three weeks before Belmont Stakes Day to decide who will be crowned king or queen for another twelve months.

The Preakness Stakes is run every year in Baltimore, Maryland. The race was named after a former colt that won the first Dinner Party Stakes at Pimlico and has been termed "The Run for the Black-Eyed Susans" because on winning day, all horses are draped with a blanket of black eyed susan flowers from their withers to ground level. This event ranks second only to Kentucky Derby among North America's equestrian events.
