TK Roofing & Gutters Shares 4 Tips To Prepare Roof For Summers

June 09, 2021

Akron, Ohio - June 09, 2021 -
TK Roofing & Gutters has released an article titled "Get Your Roof Ready for Summer." Daryl Gentry, the owner, shares tips on how to protect the roof from sun damage. The article outlines tips to clean the gutter to prevent damage to the roof as well. Gentry also stresses the need for timely inspection to look for signs of water damage before the summer heat can make matters worse. TK Roofing and Gutters has been one of Akron's top local roofing companies for the past 15 years.

Gentry starts the article by emphasizing the importance of preparing the roof for summer after the winter snow, ice, and springtime rains. The article states that this is the time to pay the most attention to the roof before the hot summer months begin to bring extreme heat, humidity, thunder, and hail storms.

"Many homes can take a beating during the summer and could end up needing extensive roof repairs or even a roof replacement. While we can't control mother nature, there are things we can do to prepare our roofs for her wrath, like getting an inspection by a local roofing contractor," advises the TK Roofing and Gutters owner.

The article discusses a few ways for homeowners to get their roof ready for summer and protect it from sun damage. The top Ohio roofer suggests using high-quality roofing material if the roof needs repair or replacement that can stand up to the heat from the sun.

Gentry stresses the need for roofing inspection done by a professional roofer to make sure the roof is ready to withstand the summer heat. The best roofers in Akron, Ohio, state that cleaning the gutters before the summer arrives is an important step to make sure the roof is protected from damage. This is important to unclog them of debris, leaks, or blockages before the summer rainstorms cause water to leak back into the roof. This will also help prevent leaks during a summer rainstorm. Keeping the gutters clean is crucial to keeping the roof healthy, asserts Daryl Gentry.

Gentry goes onto say, "a roofing inspection is an essential step to preparing the roof for summers and looking for signs of water damage that can cause a majority of roofing problems."

The #1 local roofing contractor suggests paying attention to foliage, downed branches, and large trees overhanging the house. This can ensure that the roof is well prepared for the scorching summer weather. Gentry warns, "If a tree branch or even the entire tree were to fall over during a thunderstorm, it could cause a significant amount of damage to your roof." The roofing contractor suggests trimming all low-hanging tree branches close to the house to prevent damage to the roof.

The Akron roofing contractor is well known for its roof repair and replacement services in Ohio. They focus on improving the functionality of the roof, which further adds to its curb appeal. The TK Roofing & Gutters owner advises homeowners to inspect the roof if they spot any signs of algae.

TK Roofing and Gutters has the knowledge and experience to identify whether a roof will withstand the vagaries of summer weather ahead. TK Roofing and Gutters prides itself in being one of the top Akron roofers that have been in the business of roofing inspection, repair, and replacement for decades. The family-owned roofing company in Ohio boasts a team of professionals roofers that can prepare roofs for a wide range of weather.

Gentry suggests homeowners focus on these four tips to prolong the life of their roof, which will ultimately save them thousands of dollars in the long run. Any homeowner seeking roofing help should get in touch with TK Roofing and Gutters to prepare their roof for the summer season ahead and maintain a healthy roof year round. Homeowners can schedule a free roofing estimate with Akron's best roofers via their website.

"articleBody": "Due to the snow, ice from winter, and the rains that we see in the springtime, your roof is probably in need of a little attention. And it's important to give it this attention before the hot summer months are upon us. Summers have the potential to bring extreme heat and humidity as well as thunder and hail storms. Many homes can take a real beating during the summer and could end up needing extensive roof repairs or even a roof replacement. While we can't control mother nature, there are things we can do to prepare our roofs for her wrath, like getting an inspection by a local roofing contractor. In the article below, we will discuss a few ways to get your roof ready for summer. Protect From Sun Damage While there is no way to protect your roof from sun damage completely, there are a few things you can do to lessen its impact. Newer roofing materials are designed to withstand harsh sun rays better than older roofing materials. So if you happen to need a new roof, be sure to choose a roofing material that can stand up to the sun. The signs of sun damage aren't always easy to spot, so it's a good idea to have your roof inspected in the Spring so you can get a good idea of the shape your roof is in. Fortunately, a professional roofer from TK Roofing and Gutters can perform a thorough roof inspection to make sure it's ready for the summer heat. Clean Your Gutter Between dirt, leaves, and other debris that get blown around by the spring storms, your gutters will definitely need some attention before the summer arrives. Even if you cleaned your gutter in the fall, there's still a good chance they've been clogged with gunk over winter, so you should inspect their condition. Before the intense heat of summer arrives, you should clean out your gutters. Once your gutters have been cleared of any debris, run some water through them with your garden hose. This will help you find any leaks or blockages in the downspout. Look Out for Water Damage Water damage causes the vast majority of roofing issues. Just because it's summer doesn't make that fact any less true. When your roof is cooking under the hot summer sun, cracking or seam issues can arise which will let water in the next time it rains. This can cause a huge mess and lead to many more problems in the future. So even if you're expecting a hot, dry summer, you should still keep in mind that water damage can strike at any time. Pay Attention To Foliage, Downed Branches, & More Summer thunderstorms and even light showers can cause more damage than you may realize. You need to ensure that your roof is prepared for whatever summer may throw at it. Sometimes damage to your roof in the summer isn't caused by the heat, sun, or water. Sometimes it can be caused to the things that surround your roof. Having large trees overhanging your house might provide excellent shade, but they can also cause a lot of damage. If a tree branch or even the entire tree were to fall over during a thunderstorm, it can cause a significant amount of damage to your roof. It's a good idea to keep all low-hanging tree branches trimmed and make sure all the trees surrounding your house are strong and healthy. BONUS: Roof Repair and Replacements Hopefully, this isn't necessary, but if you notice that shingles are cracked, loose or missing, or the flashing has worn away, now is the time to take care of these issues. Repairing and replacing these items will improve the functionality of your roof, and it will add to the curb appeal of your home. With summer pool party's and BBQs just around the corner, having a roof that looks good is an added bonus. You should also have your roof inspected if you notice any areas are covered in algae. Make sure an experienced, professional roofer performs the inspection. They will know how to help your roof withstand the summer sun and storms. Contact TK Roofing and Gutters To Prepare For Summer Your roof is your first line of defense against the harsh summer elements, and it's also one of the best investments you can make in your home. When you follow these tips before summer as part of your regular roof maintenance routine, you can protect your roof and your family from the elements. These 4 tips will also prolong the life of your roof, saving you thousands of dollars in the long run. TK Roofing and Gutters has been helping homeowners like you maintain a healthy roof, no matter what the season is.
