Baltimore, Maryland - June 10, 2021 -
Baltimore, MD - Dependable Homebuyers Has announced that they are buying houses in Baltimore's Highlandtown neighborhood. In just 14 days, they are able to find investors who was willing to purchase the property in cash and close on it immediately. Their website can be found at https://sites.google.com/site/webuyhousesinbaltimoremd/. "This is how we work at Dependable Homebuyers," the company says. "We buy homes quickly so that sellers get out from under them as soon as possible without having to worry about making costly repairs or renovations."

"Why put up with all the trouble of a traditional sale when you can sell your house quickly for cash?" a representative for Dependable Homebuyers stated. "If you are trying to sell a home in Baltimore that was acquired from an estate or are in the middle of a recent divorce and are looking for the easiest way to get out of it as quickly as possible without making costly repairs, then Dependable Homebuyers is your solution."

The area currently known as Highlandtown was established in 1866 when the area known as "Snake Hill" was established as a village outside the Baltimore city limits. The first settlers of the community were primarily German Americans. In 1870, residents renamed the neighborhood "Highland Town" because of the views it offered over the city. The neighborhood was made part of Baltimore City in 1919.

The neighborhood today is bounded by Haven Street to the east, Baltimore Street to the north, Linwood Avenue to the west, and Eastern Avenue to the south. The long stretch of Eastern Avenue that runs through the neighborhood is notable as the Highlandtown's main commercial thoroughfare. The area was designated as a "Main Street District" by a previous mayor Martin O'Malley, seeking to promote commercial revitalization through economic incentives from the National Main Street Program.

Highlandtown is a neighborhood in Baltimore, Maryland. Highlandtown was designated as part of the Patterson Park/Highlandtown Historic District in the National Register of Historic Places. In Baltimorese the neighborhood is pronounced "Hollantown". Records dating back to the 1870s show the neighborhood was once one of Baltimore?s main commercial and industrial hubs. During this period, according to records from 1870 onwards, its fortunes were in decline as a result of changing industry dynamics that have led manufacturers to trade traditional production centers for cheaper locations globally as well as more popular shopping centers within cities.

"Unlike other companies, we buy houses quickly and cash so sellers can walk away with what they want at no cost." a Dependable Homebuyers spokesperson says. "If your goal is to get a quick cash offer, then we can buy your home from you so that you don't have the headache of renovations or repairs."

Highlandtown was once known as a "Little Appalachia" or a "hillbilly ghetto." Before, during, and after World War II many Appalachian migrants settled in Baltimore, including in Highlandtown. Appalachian people who migrated to Highlandtown were largely economic migrants who came looking for work.

Highlandtown is currently undergoing a transition. German, Polish, Czech, Italian, Irish, Greek and Ukrainian descendants is diversifying. The headquarters of the Baltimore Science Fiction Society can be found on the northern edge of Highlandtown.

The easternmost eight blocks are occupied by parallel north?south streets that start with consecutive letters of the alphabet, from Baylis to Haven. This scheme continues in Greektown to the east, and resets at Bayview.
