Adfilic Releases New iPhone 6s Case

September 28, 2015

September 28, 2015 -
British Columbia company Adfilic has announced the release of their new iPhone 6s case. The company had timed the launch to be just in time for the newly launched Apple iPhone 6s that will be out this fall, and offers protection for the phone to help consumers avoid costly repairs and replacements that often come along with dropping or scratching cellular phones.

James Chien, spokesperson for the company, explains, "This is the perfect stylish case for students heading back to school with their new iPhone 6." He points out that the company has been designing the new case since the first official word of the new iPhone from Apple surfaced. He goes on to say that the case is designed to specifically fit the new phone, although they do offer other products for users with older iPhone models as well.

Adfilic offers a variety of iPhone 6 phone cases through the Amazon marketplace. The case is specifically designed to work with the new Apple phone, offering convenient operating experience that allows the user to receive calls or messages even when the flip cover is closed.

The Adfilic flip cover case is specifically designed to accommodate and not hinder users pressing the buttons freely, making it a more convenient case than many others on the market, according to James Chien.

"Phones are expensive, particularly the iPhone," he states. "We wanted to design a case that allows users to protect their investments by preventing slipping and breaking, and something that is stylish, which is why we have designed our iPhone 6 leather case."

James Chien pointed out that people regularly ask them what is the best iPhone case on the market, and he wants them to know that their case is high quality and durable. The company offers a risk free money back guarantee on all products, including the new phone cases. Having developed a number of consumer household products, Adfilic provides a satisfaction guarantee and strives to offer world class customer service.

More about the company can be seen on their Amazon profile and consumers interested can already begin ordering the new iPhone case.
