LOS ANGELES, CA - June 11, 2021 -

Bakersfield, CA ? Any person who has ever been through the Bakersfield area knows that this city is an incredible place to live and visit. There are countless attractions and fun activities that are suitable for residents and visitors of all ages. However, recently, there has been a noticeable increase in the number of cases of substance abuse in this community. The state of California has seen a 40 percent increase in overdoses this past year. Bakersfield residents have begun to look for answers.

Substance abuse and addiction have many underlying driving forces that influence the initial abuse, these include underlying mental health issues, past trauma or simply overwhelming life stressors. In the U.S. alone, around 21 million people struggle with some form of addiction, yet only 10% actually receive the treatment that they need. Around 20% of Americans diagnosed with anxiety or depression also struggle with substance abuse. It's important to address all aspects of addiction in treatment, as many substance use disorders stem from undiagnosed and untreated mental health conditions.

The Muse Treatment Center team is available to help Bakersfield residents that are suffering from substance abuse or addiction. Muse understands the stress and chaos that often comes along with addiction and does everything they can to help any client that reaches out for help.

Often people think that they may have a substance abuse problem but aren't sure if they fall into the category of needing to attend an addiction recovery program. When a person first reaches out to a professional addiction treatment center, they go through a series of questions to determine the severity of the disease. This conversation includes determining the potential client's substance of choice as well as the length of time that person has been struggling to control their use.

If it's determined that attending rehab treatment is the best course of action, a quality accredited treatment center like Muse will work quickly to set that person up with an appropriate treatment plan for their needs. They will determine if the person first needs to start their recovery in a medical detox program or if that person is ready to begin an inpatient or outpatient treatment program.

For someone who has consumed their substance of choice within 24 hours of reaching out for help or based on the frequency of their use, it will likely be recommended that they attend detox to start. Following medical detox, patients can choose between inpatient or outpatient treatment. With a staff of specialized medical professionals, Muse goes out of their way to ensure their clients have everything that they need to successfully complete the program that they choose.

For anyone struggling with substance abuse, Muse's team is available 24/7 to answer questions and begin the admissions process. As one of the top recovery facilities in Southern California, they are ready to provide their clients with the tools and the resources required to successfully manage addiction. Call (800) 426-1818 to see why Muse Treatment is Los Angeles' #1 alcohol & drug rehab program, and take the first step toward a new life.
